

WALTER A. SIMS NOMINATED MAYOR OF ATLANTA DEFEATING JAMES G. WOODWARD BY 990 VOTES

Senate Sustains Harding Veto on Bonus Bill

TOTAL FOUR LESS THAN NECESSARY TWO-THIRDS VOTE

Seventeen Democrats Voted to Override Presidential Veto and Seven to Sustain.

HOUSE HAD PASSED OVER VETO EARLIER

Vote in Senate Was 44 to 28, While That in the House Was 258 to 54, to Override Veto.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Washington, September 20.—The bonus bill failed of enactment late today, the senate sustaining President Harding's veto. Previously the house had overridden the veto by a large margin.

The senate roll call showed 44 yeas to 28 nays, or four less than the two-thirds majority necessary to override the veto. The vote in the house was 258 to 54 or fifty more than the required number.

Although it was reported that a new bill might be introduced tomorrow, it was certain that the bonus fight would not be renewed, at least until the next session of congress which will begin December 4.

Senate Roll Call.

British and Turk Outposts Reported In First Skirmishes

PRESS OF NATION PRAISES HARDING FOR BONUS VETO

Senator Williams Challenges Reed to Amend Bill Limiting Beneficiaries to Actual Fighters.

SAYS BILL IS RUINED BY POLITICAL ANGLE

Not Enough Votes Among the Men Who Actually Fought to Interest Politicians, Says Williams.

Constitution Bureau Raleigh Hotel

Washington, September 20.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—An analysis of the second day comment on the action of President Harding in vetoing the soldiers' bonus bill shows widespread approval among the cosmopolitan press of the country.

Democratic and republican newspapers conjointly, on the whole, came out with complimentary editorials in which it was declared that the chief executive had in substance saved the country from an extravagant burden negotiated at the hands of politicians. The feeling prevailed that Mr. Harding had rendered a distinct service to the country in the face of well laid opposition. At the same time the opinion was expressed that members of the house and senate in voting for the bonus, did so knowing they were passing the buck to the white house. The position was taken along the line that many senators and representatives, at heart opposed to the bonus, and who ordinarily would have voted against it, relieved themselves of the responsibility after having been informed of the president's intention to kill the bill.

Not Unlikely

Senator John Sharp Williams, democrat of Mississippi, and one of the leading opponents of the compensation measure, took this position on the floor today. He declared in no uncertain terms that the psychology of some of his colleagues was well understood, adding that the bill was surrounded with more politics than perhaps any one he had ever seen.

Senator Williams, who voluntarily retired from the senate next March, made what observers described as one of the most forceful speeches yet delivered on the bonus, severely criticizing bonus advocates for making a display of heroics in connection with the subject. The repeated reference to the nation's debt to wounded soldiers and those who took part in repulsion of the German invasion, he said was an example of this. He offered to bet Senator Reed, of Missouri, "three plantations to a ginger cake" that he would not dare present an amendment limiting the bonus to those who were wounded or who were in the battle line. It was not accepted.

Following Senator Reed, who spoke in favor of the measure, Senator Williams said in part:

"Mr. President, if it were true—and it is not—that the bonus bill was for the benefit of those who looked into the mouths of the cannon, and who walked up the steep against the German artillery and infantry, there would be some reason in the attempt at eloquence made during the last five minutes of the speech of the senator."

Kemalist Army Concentrating at Edge of Neutral Line—British Mobilizing Fast.

BRITAIN TO ATTACK BY LAND, SEA AND AIR

Turk Chief in Constantinople Says War Certain If Kemalists Are Refused Straits Passage.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Constantinople, September 20.—Hamid Bey, the Turkish nationalist representative here, informed the Associated Press correspondent this evening that it was certain the Turkish army would declare war on the British if the British attempted to interfere with the movement of the Turkish troops across the straits to Thrace.

Hamid Bey expressed the hope that the British would see the fairness of granting the Kemalists the privilege already accorded to the Greeks, namely freedom in the use of the Straits without molestation. He entertained scant hope of the success of the conference at Smyrna between Kemal Pasha and General Pelle, the French high commissioner, declaring that the Angora government's determination to occupy Thrace was already fixed, and nothing would deter it except recognition of its claims.

Skirmishes Reported.
Nationalist troops are massed at the edge of the neutral lines at Ismid and Chanak, and skirmishes are reported between advance patrols and British outposts near Chanak.

The British are mobilizing every available warship, man, horse, automobile, cannon and rifle within reach of the troubled zone. They are preparing to deal a tremendous blow by land, sea and air if provoked by the Kemalist army, which according to the latest reports, is concentrating feverishly around Ismid and Chanak.

Troops Marching.
All the British barracks in Constantinople have been evacuated and troops are marching in the streets of the capital, which is having a sobering effect on the exuberant Turks.

NEAR EAST PARLEY IS AGREED UPON

Britain and France Decide to Call Conference to Decide Future of Turkey in Europe.

BY HUDSON HAWLEY.

Paris, September 20.—Great Britain and France have agreed to convene a Near East peace conference as quickly as possible to decide whether Turkey shall be given a new foothold in Europe.

Japan will be invited to participate, as will Italy, Greece, Rumania, Yugoslavia and representatives of the Turkish nationalist government at Angora. Soviet Russia will be excluded despite the declaration of Kemal Pasha that he will agree to no settlement formulated without Russia.

This conference probably will be held at Venice. Neither the time nor place has been definitely fixed. The decision to hold such a peace meeting at once was reached during the first day of the conversations between Premier Poincare and Lord Curzon, the British foreign minister.

SUCCESS GREETED OPENING OF DRIVE FOR ELKS' FUND

$61,275 Already Reported With 33 Divisions Still to Be Heard From, It Is Announced.

WORKERS DELIGHTED WITH PROGRESS MADE

Large Part of Amount Already in Hand Is in Cash. Installment Payments Are Being Allowed.

Subscriptions totaling $61,275 were reported Wednesday by 24 of the 57 divisions campaigning for $150,000 to finance the convention of the Elks' grand lodge in Atlanta next July.

The luncheon given to the campaigners at the Ansley hotel was marked by the greatest enthusiasm as team after team reported quotas materially filled, some of them entirely completed. Practically every chairman stated that receipts had only been limited to the matter of persons called on, and at least half of those present reported that they had received a subscription from every person approached.

William T. Perkerson, director of the campaign; John S. McClelland, chairman of the convention board; Executive Secretary B. C. Broyles, and other lodge officials were highly elated by the preliminary showing.

"The most gratifying feature of our reports today is not the substantial sum which has been raised in three hours of the first day's campaign," stated Mr. Perkerson, "but it is in the evidence we have received that Atlanta is back of this convention 100 per cent and means to put over the big gathering in Atlanta's accustomed style."

All Divisions on Job.
Of the divisions which did not report definite subscriptions, a large majority had representation at the

Governor Grant Meets Old Friend Who Resides Here

Friendship of Over Half a Century Renewed by Sulgrave Delegate.

BY GARLAND PORTER.

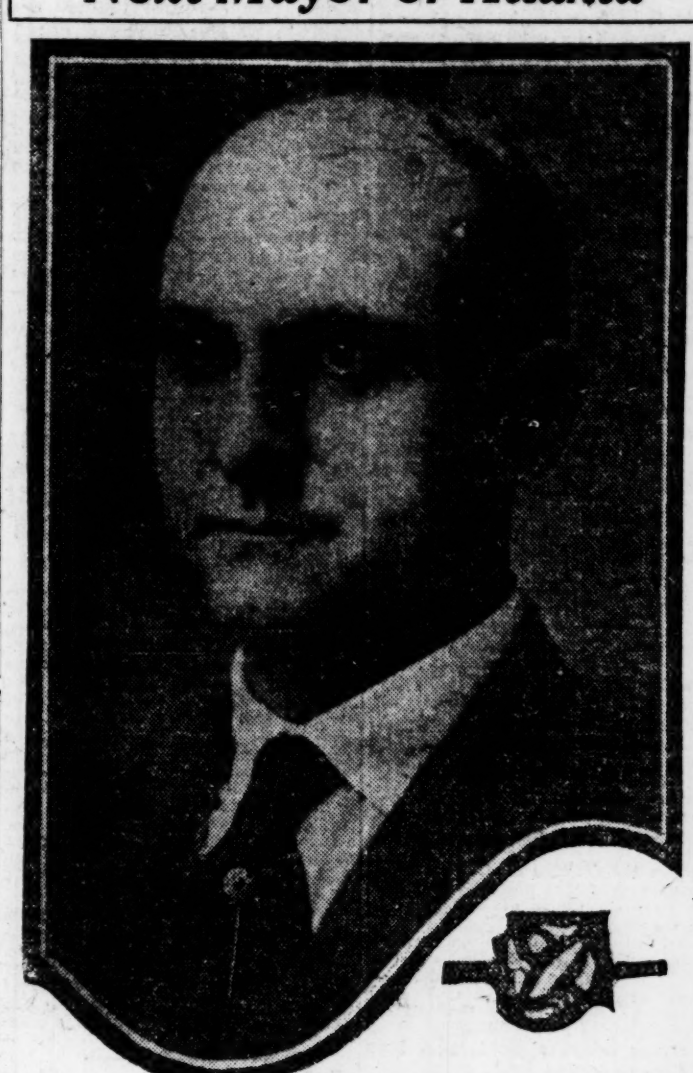

When Lieutenant Governor John MacCullum Grant, of Nova Scotia, walked up to Mrs. M. E. Geldert, who is in her ninety-first year, and bowed over her hand a friendship of more than half a century was renewed Tuesday morning in the ladies' room of the Georgian Terrace hotel. Lieutenant Governor Grant, who is a member of the Sulgrave delegation which left Atlanta early Wednesday morning and Mrs. Geldert first met at Windsor, N. S., about 60 years ago, when Mr. Grant was a clerk in the store of Mrs. Geldert's brother, Monson H. Gouge.

"Mrs. Geldert, this is, indeed, a pleasure," said Mr. Grant, bowing over her hand. "If I had known where to find you I would have come to see you. It seems we must meet each other under quite unusual circumstances the last few years." And they laughed over the circumstances of the last meeting.

In 1918 Mrs. Geldert was leaving Windsor to come to Atlanta and live with her son, Howard Geldert. The train on which she was leaving Truro, N. S., brought the lieutenant governor in. Seeing Mrs. Geldert about

H. O. Overby and E. L. Schell Report Assault by 5 Men to Officers in Atlanta.

Investigation of one of the most pathetic strike disorder cases yet to come to the attention of the public was started Wednesday, it was announced by federal officers in charge. H. O. Overby, 20 years of age, whose home is in Richmond, Ga., but who has been a student at Georgia Tech for two years, and a companion, E. L. Schell, were badly beaten by five men who attacked them Friday night, September 15, as the two were making their way into town from the south shops of the Southern railway.

Investigations Wednesday, officials stated, established the identity of a number of the men who took part in the assault, but no arrests in the case have been made pending completion of the investigation now on foot.

Overby, according to the story told officers Wednesday, was forced to quit school at Tech because of lack of funds. His sister, so the story ran, was attending the Normal college at Athens, and financial difficulties made it necessary for either her or her brother to give up their courses for the time being. Overby, so he told officers, volunteered to give up his course, and went to work in the Southern shops for the purpose of helping pay his sister's expenses in school.

Friday night when he was set on by alleged strikers, young Overby was coming to town for the purpose of mailing a letter to his sister. The letter was placed in the hands of officials, who state that Overby had inclosed his pay check, endorsed, and was sending it to his sister to help pay her expenses in school, having retained only $2 for himself, which remained from his previous pay check. He told officers that it had been his custom, since going to work at the shops, to keep one pay check for himself, and send the next one to his sister.

When Overby and his companion were attacked Friday night, one blow from a black jack found its mark on the part of republicans, because they have a distinct feeling that the present congress is a liability they must carry in the coming elections. But both sides wanted to get away, for they both realize that public opinion is in a state of flux, more or less, and nothing may be taken for granted.

Senators and representatives as well as leaders of both parties have shown a marked activity to get congress out of Washington. Naturally there has been more anxiety on the part of republicans, because they have a distinct feeling that the present congress is a liability they must carry in the coming elections. But both sides wanted to get away, for they both realize that public opinion is in a state of flux, more or less, and nothing may be taken for granted.

STEPS FOR RELIEF OF ROAD-BUILDING ARE TAKEN HERE

More Than 600 Miles of Paving in Dixie Are Being Held Up by Lack of Material.

U. S. HIGHWAY OFFICERS TO BE ASKED FOR AID

Gross Misunderstanding of Needs of Engineers and Material Men Laid to Commission.

The southern division of the Asphalt association of New York, convening in Atlanta at the Ansley hotel Wednesday afternoon, took drastic steps toward the relief of the southern road building tie-up due, it is said, to the recent coal and railroad strikes, and subsequent priority rulings, relative to road materials, made by the Interstate Commerce commission.

Contractors, road engineers, state highway officials, and asphalt material men, from various southern states, in conference in the afternoon brought out that the work on more than 600 miles of paving in the southeastern states, is being held up because of the non-release of open top freight cars for the movement of road material.

The road building tie-up in the south, the officials of the asphalt association say, is causing contractors, and material men, in charge of the various projects a great deal of concern.

Men Out of Work.

Thousands of men are out of employment they say, and contractors have been forced to almost abandon all hope of completing their fall programs.

Chief Engineer Cooke of the state highway commission of Florida, who addressed the conference in the afternoon, stated that sixty miles of highway paving and 800 men have been thrown out of employment due to what he described as an embargo on all

Highway Tourists Guests at Dinner Here This Evening

Bankhead Party Will Leave Atlanta Again Friday Morning.

Thursday, the Bankhead Highway tourists, the first leg of their journey over, will return to Atlanta and will be guests of the chamber of commerce at a dinner tonight. Friday morning at 9 o'clock the fleet of cars will leave for the remainder of the trip, which will extend through South Carolina.

Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock the party, embracing executive officers of the Bankhead National highway association, state highway officials of Atlanta to log, mark and boost the section of the Bankhead highway between Atlanta and South Carolina. They were escorted by motor delegations from Bowden and Carrollton.

Stops were made Wednesday at Mableton, Villa Rica, Bowden, Carrollton, where the tourists spent the night. Each of these towns had prepared a program of entertainment and special reception for the visitors. The itinerary Thursday will carry the motorists through Tallapoosa, Bremen, Douglasville, Astell, thence back to Atlanta.

The remainder of the tour will require two days to complete and will end at Blacksburg, S. C. Stops will be made at a dozen Georgia and South Carolina towns en route.

HANSELL ELECTED IN RACE FOR CHIEF OF CONSTRUCTION

Defeats C. S. Robert by Vote of 7,090 to 6,416. W. Garland Cooper Wins in Council Contest.

ALDERMAN W. C. DAVIS BEATEN BY ARMISTEAD

Total of 13,510 Votes in Runover Largest Number Ever Polled in Mayoralty Race Here.

Carrying eight out of twelve wards, Councilman Walter A. Sims won over James G. Woodward in the run-over primary Wednesday, receiving a majority of 990 votes in a total of 13,510 votes cast. Mr. Sims received 7,250 votes against 6,260 cast for his opponent.

In a close race for chief of construction, William A. Hansell defeated C. S. Robert, nosing himself into victory by 674 votes. The vote for Hansell was 7,090 and Robert received 6,416.

Jesse Armistead, opposing Alderman W. C. Davis for re-election, was victor over his opponent by nearly two to one. Mr. Armistead received 8,955 votes and Alderman Davis 4,621.

In the tenth ward council race W. Garland Cooper was successful, winning a majority of 183 votes over Sam Freeman. Mr. Cooper received 561 votes, Mr. Freeman 378.

Largest Vote Ever Cast.
The total of 13,510 votes in the primary Wednesday is the largest number ever polled in a mayoralty contest in the history of the city.

In the first election on September 6, with six candidates in the field, only 12,551 votes were cast.

Mr. Sims carried the first, second, third, fifth, sixth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth wards.

Mr. Woodward led in the fourth, seventh, eighth and ninth wards, carrying the fourth by 230 votes, the seventh by 9 votes, the eighth by 661 majority, and the ninth by 220 majority.

Statement by Sims.
After complete returns were received giving him the nomination Mr. Sims gave a statement attributing the victory to the principles his platform represented, and declared, "the people may depend upon me to carry out the pledges which I have made in my campaign."

"This election demonstrates that the people of this great city are tired of ring rule," he said, "and are in favor of popular government, and I propose to put into effect on the 1st day of January the wishes of the great masses of the people of Atlanta."

He expressed his purpose to "treat all sects, creeds and nationalities alike, and be mayor of the entire city."

Mr. Sims promised the people, before election, that if he won he would "clean-up" the administration of the police department.

Irregularities Charged.
Mr. Woodward blamed his defeat on the "Ku Klux Klan, the Twelve-Party club and organizations of like ilk." He also charged irregularities at the election, declaring that many persons found themselves disfranchised who had registered and were qualified to vote.

"Until the representative people of Atlanta perform their civic and patriotic duty by going to the polls and voting, instead of negligently regarding their privilege," he said, "the south's greatest city will be dominated by the Ku Klux Klan, the Twelve-Party club and organizations of like ilk."

"I have no complaints to make at the results of the election," continued Mr. Woodward. "My entrance into the mayoralty race at the eleventh hour, as everyone knows, was entirely

Record Indicates 'Pedestrian Day' Decided Success

No Accidents Reported at Street Crossings in Atlanta Wednesday.

Jay-walkers, speed fiends and persons charged with infringement of the traffic ordinances were doubly reminded of the existence of these regulations Wednesday when they appeared before Recorder Johnson and a committee from the junior chamber of commerce, which is sponsoring "No Accident" week.

In addition to paying fines and receiving the warning of Judge Johnson not to come back again on similar charges, the defendants were instructed by the committee of the importance of adhering to the rules and urged to co-operate in the prevention of accidents.

"Pedestrian day," which was a feature of the safety first campaign, Wednesday, came and went with only a few cases being docketed against traffic violators and pedestrians. That the day was an unusual success was evidenced by the fact that not a single accident at street crossings was recorded at Grady hospital or other hospitals.

Placards enlisting co-operation of pedestrians to observe safety first methods and prevent accidents were in evidence on billboards and in show windows in the business district early in the morning. Funds for advertising this need were contributed by the city council, which endorsed the movement to curtail accidents.

The committee appearing in police court also addressed the three police shifts, calling upon the officers to aid in the movement by making cases against everyone attempting to jaywalk, cut corners or otherwise violate the traffic regulations. More accidents occur from carelessness in this regard, it was pointed out, than in any other way.

Robert L. Troy, secretary of the Junior chamber, spoke to an audience in a moving picture theater in Decatur Wednesday night, calling upon that city to join in the crusade against accidents.

"It is Atlanta's policy to pass along a good thing when it comes our way," declared Mr. Troy. "We are certain to experience good results from 'No Accident' week in Atlanta so we are endeavoring to stimulate interest in the movement in our neighboring cities."

Safety first methods are being taught children in the public schools this week, the committee announced. Teachers were furnished with statistics which disclosed that in 1920 more than 70,000 persons were killed in the United States and of this number, approximately 10,000 were children under five years of age.

Western Union Lease Upheld In Highest Court

The supreme court handed down a decision Wednesday holding that the Western Union Telegraph company possesses, through a lease, an equity in the Transportation building in the corner of Forsyth and Marietta, which entitles the company to protection and ruled that the Fulton superior court should have granted the company an injunction to protect this equity during litigation which developed when the Metropolitan Life Insurance company sought to foreclose a $300,000 mortgage on the building.

The case attracted wide attention in legal circles. When the Metropolitan company sought to foreclose the mortgage, the Western Union company, which holds a 20 year lease on part of the building, took steps to protect its interest. The supreme court reversed the ruling of the Fulton superior court in the case.

Ask For Injunction.
The Western Union Telegraph company, through its attorneys, Dorsey, Brewster, Howell & Heyman, filed a petition for injunction in Fulton superior court, alleging that it was a tenant of the Transportation building, owned by Brown-Randolph company, under a lease for 20 years, and that, as a result of a default in payment of interest upon the mortgage given by Brown-Randolph company to the Metropolitan Life Insurance company for $400,000, secured by the building, the property was being advertised for sale, under the foreclosure proceedings, with the result that the sale would divest the Western Union lease; that the property was being advertised for sale, but that the Western Union had expended large sums in equipping the leased premises, which constituted a substantial part of the building, and that the lease was of great value.

It alleged that the mortgage holders of the property were bound to pay off the mortgage and all liens superior to the plaintiff's lease, and the petition prayed for a decree requiring the property to be sold subject to the lease of the Western Union Telegraph company, which offered to give bond, acceptable to the court, conditions that the property, if sold subject to its lease, would bring more than enough to pay the mortgage and all superior court liens and expenses attached thereto.

Held Against Company.
Upon the hearing in Fulton superior court, Judge Pendleton held that the Metropolitan Life Insurance company was entitled to foreclose its mortgage upon the entire property, and that the court was without jurisdiction to require a sale subject to the lease.

From the decision of Judge Pendleton an appeal was promptly taken to the Supreme Court of Georgia, and the decision rendered Wednesday reversed the decision of Fulton superior court, and held that the Western Union Telegraph company, under its lease, had an equity, and that the relief prayed for in the bill for injunction filed by the Western Union Telegraph company should have been granted, as prayed for.

The supreme court ruled that a decree should be taken providing for the sale of the property, subject to the lease of the Western Union Telegraph company, upon the execution of the bond tendered by the company.

The decision terminates a litigation which attracted attention on account of the novel issues presented, and on account of the value of the property involved in the controversy.

The Western Union Telegraph company was represented throughout the litigation by Dorsey, Brewster, Howell & Heyman and by Mark Bolding, and the defendants were represented by Rosser, Slaton, Phillips & Hopkins; Dean & Wright; Smith, Hammond & Smith; Napier, Wright & Wood; and Evans & Moore.

School Children To Write Essays On 'Safety First'
The chairman of the church and school committee announce the inauguration of an essay contest in connection with the "Safety First" week conducted by the junior chamber of commerce.

It has been definitely decided that four prizes will be given away to the school children of Atlanta for the best essays written on the subject of "Safety First." Two prizes will be given to the public schools and one to the high schools and one to the colored public school. The essays will be limited to 500 words each.

The judges of this contest will be announced later. All essays must be forwarded to Dr. Louis Proesterman, 312 Connally building, chairman of the church and school committee, who is in charge of this contest.

The chairman of this committee announces that no stone will be returned to bring to the attention of the school children of Atlanta the educational campaign of safety first for their own sake and for the sake of others. Another event to more effectively impress the necessity is that a lesson on safety first is being taught by the teachers during the week of September 17 to 24.

SIX MEN INJURED IN GAS EXPLOSION

Columbus, Ga., September 20.—(Special.)—A. M. Spence, white, and six negro workmen were more or less seriously injured in an explosion at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Columbus Gas works. The explosion occurred in the pumping house near the plant, and virtually leveled that building. Debris was scattered a block or more away, damaging nearby buildings.

Mr. Spence's chief injuries are burns about the face and hands and bruises. His condition is not thought to be serious.

A few minutes after the explosion other workmen in other parts of the gas works and persons near by, with members of the fire department, began the work of extricating the injured men from the wreckage and they were hurried to the city hospital. All will recover.

The cause of the explosion was attributed to a leaky gas pipe in the pit beneath the high pressure exhaust engines that are used through the middle of the day, when most gas is consumed to aid the high pressure mains in forcing gas through the pipes throughout the city system.

Just what set off the explosion has not been fully explained though it is known that Mr. Spence was in the plant today had previously ordered that there be no smoking and that nobody should strike a match until the leak had been stopped.

REHEARING GRANTED TO MASONS' ANNUITY

The supreme court Wednesday vacated an order issued by the Fulton Superior court last June appointing a receiver for the Masons' Annuity insurance company of Atlanta. The receivership was sought by policy holders of one of the old class of policies and the proceedings were brought to test whether or not the company was liable for the policies of this class.

On the day of the hearing, the company were appointed temporary receivers pending the final decision in the case by the supreme court. Mrs. Cora L. McLelland, through her attorneys, instituted the original suit in which several other policy holders joined.

The company has assets of more than a million dollars and these assets were involved in the litigation. The supreme court ruled Wednesday that the insurance company should be given a rehearing in the case and set October 2 as a date for this hearing.

Two Men Injured In Truck-Trolley Crash Wednesday

Joe F. Hindman and Jim Hale, both of Egan Park, were dangerously hurt and several passengers on a Haverhill street car of the Georgia Railway and Power company shaken and bruised in a collision early Wednesday morning between a motor truck driven by Hale and the street car at Hatcher's crossing, in Egan Park.

Hale was taken to the Grady hospital, while Hindman, a friend and neighbor of Hale, who was on the truck with him, was carried to the Atlanta hospital. Hale's right leg and arm were broken, and he was badly bruised and cut. Hindman has a broken hip in addition to other serious injuries.

The force of the impact hurled the street car from its tracks and several passengers inside of the car sustained the excitement that prevailed for some time.

Officials of the power company are quoted as saying that the motor truck was speeding at the time of the accident. This is denied by Hale, who claims he was going not more than 4 miles per hour.

A thorough investigation is being conducted by county police to determine responsibility for the accident.

Frank Hill, Tifton Road Engineer, Moved To Atlanta Office

Tifton, Ga., September 20.—(Special.)—Frank M. Hill, engineer in charge of road district 10 of state highway department, with headquarters at Tifton, has been transferred to the Atlanta office and leaves tonight for that city.

The change was made on account of Mr. Hill's health. He has done much constructive work in the 10th district this year. He is succeeded here by H. L. Furrow, an engineer with high recommendations who comes from the Atlanta office.

UNIVERSITY OPENS FOR 122ND TERM

Athens, Ga., September 20.—(Special.)—The University of Georgia formally opened its 122nd annual session Wednesday morning with exercises in the historic chapel. Just prior to the opening of the university, exercises were held in Seney-Stovall chapel marking the beginning of the fall session at Lucy Cobb institute for girls, located here.

The exercises at the university chapel were simple and dignified. The faculty headed by the military attaches of the institution formed in front of the academic building and, gowned in the academic regalia of their respective banks, the members marched to the chapel. In addition to the faculty members, there were in the line the ministers of the city, resident members of the board of trustees of the university and high officials of the college.

At the chapel, the invocation was pronounced by Dr. E. L. Hill, of the First Presbyterian church, and was followed by an address of welcome by Chancellor Barrow. He urged the new men to realize that they are to be trained in the art of citizenship.

ALL PLEASINGLY PLUMP FOLK FREE AT RIALTO
If you happen to be one of those happy persons who tip the scales at 225 pounds or over, you are offered free admission to the Rialto Theater this week on the occasion of the showing of an unusual short-reel novelty, "How to Grow Thin."

Prohi Officer Bitten By Rattlesnake May Recover, at Columbus

Columbus, Ga., September 20.—Walter Emory, of LaGrange, federal prohibition agent, who was bitten by a rattlesnake yesterday afternoon while hunting for a still in Lee county, Ala., just across the river from Columbus, was resting well at the city hospital, this morning.

Emory was rushed to the city, after two other officers accompanying him had given first aid, and placed in the hospital. The bite was on the leg. His chances for recovery appear to have gained overnight, according to hospital attaches.

STRIKE INJUNCTION DECISION TODAY

Chicago, September 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—The government's suit for a nationwide injunction against the striking railroad shop-crafts will be decided tomorrow night, a few hours before the temporary restraining order now in force expires.

This became evident today when the defense closed its case and opening arguments were begun. Blackburn Esterline, assistant solicitor-general, opened for the government, followed by Donald R. Richberg, attorney for B. M. Jewell and John Scott, the strike leaders. Mr. Richberg will complete his argument tomorrow, to be followed by his associate counsel, Frank Mulholland, of Toledo, while Assistant Attorney General McLaughlin will close for the United States.

The government has not quite completed the draft of the injunction which it will ask Judge Wilkerson to sign, but there were indications that some of the drastic clauses of the restraining order will be modified.

BANKER CONVICTED OF VIOLATING LAW

Orangeburg, S. C., September 20.—C. W. Austin, former director of the People's Bank of Bowman, this country, was convicted here today by a jury of violating the state banking laws. Austin was charged with borrowing more than the ten per cent allowed by law. He will be sentenced later. R. L. Patrick, cashier of the bank, will be tried at an early date.

CAPTAIN KOLSHORN, 70, DIES AT SAVANNAH

Savannah, Ga., September 20.—(Special.)—Captain John Henry Rudolph Kolshorn, in his 70th year, died this morning here. He was a native German but resided in Savannah for many years and was prominent in business, civic and military circles. He was alderman for some years.

'Made in Atlanta' Show Is Praised By John W. Yopp

The remarkable and gratifying success achieved by the "Made-in-Atlanta" exposition during the first three days of the show, even though surprising, is only an indication of the possibilities for educating the public in the advantages of buying home products, in the opinion of John W. Yopp, secretary of the Georgia Manufacturers' association. Mr. Yopp declared Wednesday that the exposition would prove of far reaching educational value not only to the public, but to the manufacturers themselves, who are gratified at the effectiveness of their efforts to more thoroughly popularize their products in home markets.

"Some people," stated Mr. Yopp, "buy home products because of a feeling of pride. But there are enough advantages in buying at home, aside from the feeling of pride, to make it worthwhile for everyone to thoroughly know what can be bought at home. No better way of letting the people know what their home community has to offer has yet been discovered than for the makers to tell about their goods—and such an exposition as is now going on so far has proved the most effective manner of getting attention."

Advantages Shown.
"At the city auditorium this week Atlantans are seeing what is actually made in their home city, and the exhibitors show that practically everything needed by the public is made right here at home. Why is practically everything one needs made here, and why is it advantageous to buy home products?"

"In the first place, we will consider price. Atlanta products can, and do, compete with foreign manufactured goods in price, as is evidenced by the fact that the businesses actually exist. If the price were not right, competition would wipe the slate clear of home goods, because no one could afford to pay more for an article than it would cost elsewhere."

"Next comes quality. Every product made in Atlanta, with possibly a few exceptions, is turned out by improved machinery, and methods employed guarantee highest quality. So the price and quality of Atlanta goods are assuredly right, and this brings us to the point of the manufacturers exhibition—which is simply a problem of education, letting the buying public realize more thoroughly that it is to everyone's interest to buy from the home maker.

"Some factors entering into the price and quality of Atlanta made goods will no doubt be of interest to a great many people, and those who visit the auditorium this week will have a better understanding of the show if we take a glance at the advantages afforded Atlanta manufacturers which enables them to offer, in many cases, a better price than can be had on outside goods. In the manufacture of an article, approximately 50 per cent of the cost is paid out for labor. Atlanta labor conditions permit of making goods here at a saving over those made in certain other sections. Then there is the matter of saving transportation charges, and that is an important item when the final price to the consumer is considered."

Atlanta Made Goods Cheaper.
"Now, Atlanta made goods are cheaper in many instances than goods of the same quality coming from northern centers because of cheaper labor and absence of transportation charges. Therefore it is easy to see that a person buying in Atlanta is not only getting more for his money, but is also keeping his money at home."

"Half of his money goes for labor. This money stays in Atlanta when he buys goods made here. A good part of his money would go for freight charges if he purchased foreign made goods, but in Atlanta he gets this discount—an immediate saving. So it is easy to see that buying in the home market not only saves one money, but keeps money in the immediate vicinity and thereby helps stimulate business locally, whereas money paid out for foreign made goods leaves Atlanta entirely, and goes to help make business conditions better in some other city."

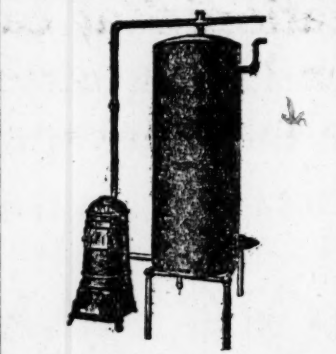

"Atlanta flour is as good as that milled elsewhere; Atlanta shoes are as good as those made north—and here is one item on which the labor advantages are easily understood. The fact is, practically everything one needs can be bought cheaper if one buys from Atlanta makers, and at the same time the expenditures for necessities stimulate business and the consumer gets another and another chance to profit through the prosperity he sets in motion by buying at home and keeping his money nearby."

"Atlanta manufacturers are confronted with the problem of educating the people to a more thorough understanding of the many advantages of home buying, and through exhibitions like which is now furnishing pleasure and profit to so many Atlantans at the city auditorium, it is easy to see that the possibilities for making Atlanta goods preferred above all others are practically unlimited."

Story of Disastrous Trip by Hydroplane Told by Two Brothers

Stuart, Fla., September 20.—Harrowing accounts were given today by the Krueger brothers, Bert and Harold, who have just reached their home here, of their attempt to fly a hydroplane, the Bluebird, from New York to Florida. The brothers left New York on September 1, but engine trouble forced them to land at a number of places along the coast. Finally, the engine stalled off the north Florida coast and the plane landed in the ocean off Cumberland island, near Fernandina. When the plane hit the water the craft was hopelessly wrecked but they boys were near enough to land to swim ashore and after walking some distance reached a railroad town where they boarded a train for home.

Some Floor Paint Facts Worth Knowing

Would you paint your floors with a paint, two coats of which was only one-hundredth of an inch thick? Do you know that two coats of the best paint is no thicker?

IT'S unbelievable, you say, to expect one-hundredth of an inch to stand all the rough and scuff, and wear and tear a floor paint has to.

Still, that's exactly what our Hard Drying Floor Paint, that is made especially for floors, will do. It stands it, because it is made of specially tough varnish, and pigments that are extra resistant to wear.

The reason so many folks have disappointments with painted floors, is mostly because they are not careful to use specially prepared floor paint.

Our Hard Drying one, dries long and stays hard. Has long lastingness. It's sold by the one best dealer in each town. Send for booklet called: "Floor Paint Lessons—Four in All."

Tiernan on Stand Denies Fatherhood Of Wife's Child

Defendant Named as Father Hears Testimony With Bored Placidity.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

South Bend, Ind., September 20.—John Tiernan, Notre Dame law professor, testifying today in the case of his wife, Mrs. Augusta Tiernan, who charges Harry Poulin with the paternity of her third born child, denied he was the father of the child and told of efforts to bring about a settlement of the affair between his wife and the defendant without legal action. The prosecution made an effort to introduce testimony of Professor Tiernan regarding the marital relations between the latter and his wife, but after a wrangle lasting through most of today's hearing, Judge C. L. Ducomb ruled the testimony of the husband in a case of the peculiar character of the present one was not admissible.

Throughout today's hearing Poulin maintained an attitude of bored placidity, only once showing signs of interest. It was at the point where Professor Tiernan denied paternity of the child, Poulin half rose in his chair and gazed steadily at Professor Tiernan when Prosecutor Jellison asked the witness if he did not have two daughters.

Dancing Parties.
The professor replied that he did, giving the names of Irene, 1 years old, and Mary 3.

"Have you any other children," the prosecutor asked.
"No, sir," Tiernan emphatically replied.

Professor Tiernan told of a series of dancing parties at surrounding towns. He said the invitations always came from Poulin to Mrs. Tiernan and that he was invited by his wife to go along.

Asked by the prosecutor if Mrs. Tiernan was frequently away from home the witness replied:
"Yes, frequently."

"Between February and April she was regularly away from home on Wednesday and Friday nights and occasionally on Saturdays. Often she said she was going to nurse and I encouraged her in that—attending Lenten services."

Professor Tiernan showed his first signs of cracking under the strain of the trial when Prosecutor Jellison inquired into the birth of the third child. His answers were low and in a trembling voice and often tears came into his eyes. He told of the baptism of the child two weeks after its birth and later of the repudiation.

He said he met Poulin on the street the day after the baby was born.
"We have a baby," I told him.
"What is it, he asked, a boy or a girl?"
"A boy, I answered, and with that he turned and walked away."

Confession Barred.
The prosecutor attempted to bring out the story of Mrs. Tiernan's confession to her husband, but on objection of defense withdrew the question and asked Tiernan what he had when he learned Poulin was the father of the child.

The professor answered that he went to Poulin and told the defendant his (Tiernan's) wife had confessed. The witness asserted that Poulin then admitted his guilt and offered to make a settlement of the case. Court was adjourned at this point until tomorrow morning when Professor Tiernan will resume the stand.

RUMOR DE VALERA IS SEEKING PEACE

Correspondent Says Rebel Leader Is Negotiating for Peace From Dublin Hiding Place.

Belfast, September 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Dublin correspondent of The Belfast Telegraph asserts today that negotiations are proceeding between Eamon de Valera, the republican leader who is in Dublin, and the provisional government.

"Mr. De Valera is in hiding," the message adds, "but through an intermediary he has made and received certain overtures."

"There is a growing feeling in Dublin that it would take years to suppress the republicans, which task also would bankrupt the Free State. Moreover, the republicans are feeling the pinch in the matter of supplies."

Report similar to the foregoing was contained in a Belfast message to The London Daily Express today. This message declared Mr. De Valera was in hiding in Dublin and seeking through an intermediary to arrange a conference with the Free State leaders to discuss peace terms.

Recommends Emergency Appropriation of $200,000 to Senate.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, September 20.—An emergency appropriation of $200,000 for relief of American refugees in the Near East was recommended to the senate today by President Harding, after receipt of an official estimate from the state department that 1,000 Americans were in pressing need.

"It is very apparent that we have an obligation to afford relief," the president said in his letter to Chairman Warren, of the senate appropriations committee, adding that the need could not be met by American relief organizations.

Senate leaders plan to add the item to the pending deficiency appropriation bill. Quick action by the house also was indicated. Representative Mondell, the republican leader, notifying members that their continued presence would be required in order that action might be had without delay.

Acting-Secretary Phillips sent to the white house today detailed reports which had reached the state department from American officials in the Near East.

"The department has telegraphed to Constantinople, Athens and Salonica for detailed information as to the exact number of destitute Americans whose temporary maintenance or repatriation may be required," Mr. Phillips' report to the president said. "In the absence of replies to these telegrams, it is difficult to give firm information, but it would be safe to assume that the number of Americans in need of relief would not be less than 1,000 and that this number would be considerably larger if the families and near relatives of these persons were included."

Hearst Prospects For Governorship Get Bad Setback

New York State Primaries Go Against Publisher in Naming Delegates.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

New York, September 20.—Aspirations of William R. Hearst to be the democratic nominee for governor of New York have received a sharp setback in the New York primaries, where his candidacy was the chief issue on the democratic side. The stock of Ex-Governor Al Smith, chief rival of Hearst for the democratic nomination, has taken a corresponding jump.

Sections of upstate New York which were counted on to return a sizeable block of Hearst-pledged delegates to the state nominating convention actually elected an overwhelming majority of anti-Hearst delegates pledged to Smith.

Severest defeats for Hearst were registered in Erie and Albany counties. In Erie county, where William J. Conners, Hearst's campaign manager, went out for all of the 38 delegates only four of his men were elected, according to the latest returns. Albany county went against Hearst probably 20 to 1 though defeat was not unexpected there.

Hylan Wins City.
In New York city Mayor Hylan's organization, which is entirely friendly to Hearst, was completely victorious in the primaries. There had been little doubt about New York city.

But the failure to register a striking victory upstate comes as a disappointment to the Hearst camp. Whether it will be sufficient to discourage further efforts to carry the state convention for the publisher is not yet known. They still hope for encouraging returns from outlying districts but these can hardly be large enough to offset the serious losses already suffered.

P. M. McCabe, Hearst's manager for Albany county, was so discouraged by the overwhelming defeat in his district that he refused to attempt an explanation.

"Part of Wisdom."
"We made such a measly showing,"

he said, "that the part of wisdom for me is to keep my mouth shut."

Hearst's defeat is indirectly, a defeat for Mayor Hylan. The publisher's candidacy has been nursed along for months through a series of open letters from the mayor. For a time it was an Alphonse-Gaston affair between the two, each insisting that the other should run. But Hylan finally said he'd rather live in his modest home in Bushwick and go on being mayor of New York. In view of his showing at the primaries, Hearst may urge that Hylan now try to block the onrush of Ex-Governor Smith.

Other features of the primary included an unexpected show of strength by the wets upstate. Theodore Douglas Robinson, brother-in-law of the late Theodore Roosevelt, was renominated for the state senate. He had declared he was "an wet as the Atlantic ocean." William Barnes, the veteran republican boss of Albany county, withstood all efforts of insurgents to unseat him. F. Trubee Davison, son of the late Henry P. Davison, the banker, was nominated for the state assembly from one of the Long Island districts.

The Davison fortune was left to this son so that he could devote himself to a life-long political career without having to worry about earning a livelihood.

New Representatives
Entertain Opponents
In Assembly Contest

The defeated candidates in the race for the three Fulton general assembly seats were entertained at a banquet in the gray room of the Piedmont hotel Wednesday night, as the guests of the three successful candidates, Miss Bessie Kington, J. O. Wood and John Y. Smith.

John N. Holden, former speaker of the house of representatives, was a special guest. Andy M. Lane was toastmaster. Each candidate made a short talk.

Murphy M. Holloway, who was one of Fulton's representatives during the last session of the assembly, asserted that it requires one term for a new representative to become familiar enough with ways of the house to be of real service to his constituents. He declared that a candidate for assembly against an incumbent should be required to name one candidate he is opposing and expressed the hope that none of the newly elected representatives would have opposition.

Others present at the dinner were A. A. Baumstark, Joseph P. Osborn

NEW ORLEANS FIRE BRINGS $105,000 LOSS

New Orleans, La., September 20.—The fire which today destroyed two business houses and four dwellings and threatened the destruction of the entire block bounded by Magazine, Constance, Erato and Gaiennie streets, caused a loss of approximately $105,000.

000, fire authorities announced tonight. Three firemen and a volunteer worked suffered shocks when coming in contact with live wires.

The heaviest property losses were sustained by the Gallagher Transfer and Storage company, where the fire originated from undetermined origin, and by the Lake Brothers Manufacturing company.

unsolicited. I was placed into the race against my best wishes by friends and loyal Atlantans, who desired to see the city controlled by an honest, progressive man who had proven his worth three times previously.

"With the exception of a few ward speeches I did not exert myself in the least to attain the office of mayor. During the period that elapsed from the time of my entrance into the campaign until the election I never ventured three blocks from my office to solicit votes nor did I distribute more than 50 cards. At the first primary and Wednesday's run-over I only went to the polls once and that was to cast my vote. I left the details of my campaign in the hands of those who were responsible for my entrance into the race."

and other kindred organizations. "I have it upon good authority that 90 per cent of the members of the city democratic executive committee are affiliated with the Ku Klux Klan, the Twelve-Twenty club, or organizations of kindred influence. It is the case, then, it is not surprising to me and the other good citizens of Atlanta that the returns should give my opponent a majority."

Mr. Woodward reiterated that he was perfectly content to spend the rest of his life divorced from politics. He stated that his only reason for permitting his name to be used in connection with the mayoralty race was due to the insistence of his friends. Two weeks before the date of the closing of the entrance books, he asserted, "I declined to become a candidate for mayor because of my health which I did not deem would permit my assuming the responsibilities of the city's chief executive. My friends, however, seemed determined to put me in the race and finally I consented because I wanted to see Atlanta freed from the yoke of political rule."

To those who voted for me and displayed their interest in the betterment of Atlanta's growth and welfare, I express my heartfelt appreciation. It is indeed unfortunate that the thousands of other good representative citizens of the community who were eligible to vote, did not avail themselves of the opportunity in this instance. Had they done so, there would have been a different story to tell.

being disenfranchised who were qualified to cast their ballots were reported in the run-over election. Mr. Woodward stated. This condition existed at the former primary and also in the state and county election last Wednesday, according to complaints of several hundred persons whose names did not appear on the official registration lists.

As a result of this condition, a resolution was adopted by the city democratic executive committee two days after the city primary, instructing Tax Collector W. S. Richardson, who is also city and county registrar, to issue certificates of eligibility to persons signing an affidavit to the effect that they had paid their 1922 taxes and were under the impression that they were registered.

In Wednesday's election, as in the first primary and in the county and state primary, several hundred persons complained of being deprived of their rights to vote. More than 200 citizens invaded the office of Tax Collector Richardson and demanded to know the reason their names had been left off the official registration lists. Out of this number the tax collector issued approximately 50 certificates, while the others were shown, Mr. Richardson stated, where they had failed to register in the specified period prior to the primary.

Richardson's Statement.
Mr. Richardson denied that a number of persons to whom certificates had been issued were denied the privilege of casting their votes at the polling precincts. He stated that not a single complaint had been registered with him or his office force of such instances.

"There could not have been any misunderstanding regarding this arrangement," asserted Mr. Richardson, "for the city democratic executive committee authorized the issuance of such certificates and all precinct managers were instructed to accept them as legal qualifications on the part of the person presenting them at the polls."

"More than three-fourths of the people who came to my office to complain over their names not having been included in the official lists, were convinced that they had not registered in the period stipulated by the rules of the committee and went away perfectly satisfied. With all the confusion that existed in the other primaries, they naturally had reasons to believe their names were erroneously left off the lists."

Sims' Statement.
In his statement, Mr. Sims said: "I wish to thank the people of this great city for the confidence they have placed in me by electing me as their next mayor."

"I feel that my election is not on account of my own personality but the principles which I represent. Tonight I feel that I am the most humble citizen of this great city and I propose to give the people of this city as good an administration of the affairs of their city government as I am capable of giving them."

"I feel so humble at this time because of the great confidence which the people have reposed in me that I do not feel that I can give a concrete statement of all of the things which I propose to do during my administration."

"Will Treat All Alike."
"I have no bitterness in my heart against any of my opponents or against any of those who fought me in this race; and I propose to treat all sects, creeds and nationalities alike, and be mayor of the entire city."

"This election demonstrates that the people of this great city are tired of ring rule, and are in favor of popular government, and I propose to put into effect on the first of January the wishes of the great masses of the people of Atlanta."

"I invite all people who love Atlanta, whether they were for me or against me, to join with me in making Atlanta the great city which it is destined to be, and I hope and pray for the revival of the old Atlanta spirit with the entire people of the city working shoulder to shoulder in harmony with one great purpose—to place Atlanta in the rank where she rightfully belongs."

"The people may depend upon me to carry out the pledges which I have made in my campaign for mayor."

Sam N. Freeman, defeated candidate for council from the seventh ward, in a statement to The Constitution Wednesday night, thanked his loyal supporters in the campaign and pledged his best efforts to the civic development and general welfare of the ward, nevertheless.

Voting is Brisk.
Wednesday was clear and fine, with a tinge of autumn rest in the air. The voting opened more briskly than the weather, hundreds of working people stopping on their way to work to cast their ballots.

This was extraordinary. Even in the warmest contests the working vote has usually been cast late in the afternoon, after shops, factories and offices had closed for the day.

However, at noon Wednesday approximately 6,000 ballots had been deposited, which was between 2,000 and 3,000 ahead of the customary number at the same hour in recent previous elections.

The heavy vote was a surprise in some quarters, but the Woodward campaign forces had persistently forecast a big vote.

Complaints Are Made.
To a less extent than in the municipal election two weeks ago and the state primary a week ago complaints of irregularities in the registration lists were made at the polls.

Numbers of voters who claimed they were registered and qualified to vote found their names omitted from the lists.

They were advised by the election managers to visit the office of City Registrar W. S. Richardson at the courthouse, make affidavit that they had paid their taxes and secure a certificate entitling them to vote.

Mr. Richardson said late Wednesday afternoon that he has issued approximately 50 certificates. "In a good many cases of complaint," said Mr. Richardson, "the election managers had overlooked a supplementary registration list. They went back to their precincts, called the managers' attention to this list, their names were found and they were allowed to vote."

"Some who registered for the charter election, which was a special election last May, were under the impression that their registration then qualified them to vote in all succeeding elections this year. This was not the case, however, and a good deal of confusion has resulted on this account."

Hot Fight Is Waged.
The first mayoralty contest was one of the warmest fought in Atlanta in years.

Six candidates ran in the first race and Sims lacked only about 1,000 votes of obtaining a majority over the entire field. He beat Woodward, his closest opponent, nearly two to one.

Both launched into a second aggressive campaign and debated its issues from the same stump.

Mr. Sims declared that the unfinished bunco fight was the main issue in the race and he promised, if elected, to "reorganize the police department from top to bottom."

He said the rank and file of the police force are clean, honest, courageous men, but asserted that some of the "higher-ups" had to go.

Mr. Woodward based his bid for another term on his past record of administration. He contended that conservative, businesslike expenditure of the bond issue money and the city's current proceeds was the only issue before the people. He charged that Mr. Sims was conducting his race on a platform of prejudice against the police department and religious intolerance.

He charged that City Clerk Walter Taylor was "dictator" over Sims, and pledged that if he became mayor "Walter Taylor will have to go to work or I'll make it hot for him."

DENYING THE BALLOT.

In the run-off primary election yesterday, as in the two previous primaries, many qualified voters of Atlanta were denied the right to vote.

They were registered, they had complied with all legal requirements and were in every respect entitled to vote. But they were refused the privilege of exercising that right because their names did not appear upon the voters' lists at the polling places.

That was the condition in both the city and the state primaries, when official assurance was given that the errors would be corrected and that such a thing would not occur again.

But when some of the citizens who had been denied the ballot upon the previous occasions tried to vote yesterday they were again turned away.

The mistakes had not been remedied; the situation had not been remedied.

It is a serious matter when a citizen is denied the right to vote in an election in which he is legally qualified to participate!

The right to vote is a sacred privilege guaranteed by the constitution, and to withhold that right from any citizen qualified to exercise it strikes at the very heart of the democratic principle of government.

The Constitution does not profess to know who is to blame for this repression of the voting power; we do not assume to say where the responsibility lies.

But we do know that there is something radically wrong somewhere.

If it is the system that is at fault—then the system should be changed at once.

It is to be hoped that there will be no more of this sort of thing in Atlanta elections in the future.

YOUTH AND THE CHURCH.

Acting in accordance with the theory of its pastor, Rev. Wiley C. Hausam, that "when a church has something better to offer than the outside competition it is sure to get the patronage," the London Heights Methodist Episcopal Community church, of Kansas City, Kan., will give this winter a series of first-class entertainments, for the purpose, frankly stated by the directors, of luring the young people away from cheap and degrading forms of amusement.

Commenting approvingly upon the proposed innovation, the Kansas City Star in a recent issue calls attention to the fact that the London Heights church "already has a gymnasium and encourages contests among the young men and young women" of its congregation; that "it has seen, with a number of other churches in the cities, that a genuine church competition for the attention of youth is not only legitimate, but an imperative necessity," and that it has, therefore, tested out the value of the kind of endeavor with which its proposed winter entertainments are in line.

Pulpit denunciation of unwholesome or questionable amusements is all very well, but it is of limited value.

Sometimes it serves a purpose the very opposite of that intended—that of increasing the patronage of the amusements under attack by advertising their objectionable characteristics.

This applies especially to the theater, which the pulpit, from time immemorial, has condemned because of alleged abuses of the primarily pure and ennobling dramatic art.

During recent years, however, the churches as a rule have been fostering a movement the aim of which is to provide dramatic entertainment for their members who enjoy it, with the objectionable elements of the stage and of the theatrical profession eliminated; and the plan announced by the London Heights church of Kansas City is in conformity with and in furtherance of that movement.

For the church, or any other power, to attempt to keep boys and girls and young men and young women away from places of amusement—away from play and entertainment—is to attempt to counter and overcome Nature; for, as our Kansas City contemporary truthfully observes, "youth will be served, in diversion as elsewhere."

The desire for entertainment, whether among the young or the older people, "is legitimate and may be properly satisfied," says the Star; and any religious organization that succeeds in satisfying that desire by offering the best and only the best in the way of entertainment will have rendered a distinct service to its community—and, by its example, to society in general.

The experiment about to be undertaken by this western congregation will be watched with interest by similar organizations in all parts of the country, for its results may be rich in possibilities.

RETURNING SANITY.

The defeat of Cole Bleese, erstwhile candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of South Carolina, was one of the most gratifying results of any of the primary elections that have thus far been held.

Bleese, nationally notorious for his radicalism and the "to-hell-with-the-constitution" policies that have characterized his public record, was overwhelmingly defeated in his contest for the United States senatorship four years ago.

This fall he sought to stage a political come-back, running for the gubernatorial nomination as one of a field of several candidates.

In the first primary he came through in second place. The leading candidate, Thomas G. McCleod, having failed to receive a majority over all, though he received a large plurality, a run-off election was required to determine the issue as between himself and Bleese.

The result of this second primary leaves no room for doubt as to the attitude of the majority of South Carolina voters.

Bleese was beaten decisively. Let us hope this defeat will be final, and that it will mark the end of Bleeseism as a factor in the political affairs of the south.

He is a twin mate of Vandaman, who also has been sent to the political "happy hunting-grounds."

National sanity is gradually returning.

After all that may be said against the primary, it at least has its advantages over the characteristic Latin-American method of settling political disputes.

With the Daugherty impeachment demand snugly tucked away in the files of the house judiciary committee, the attorney-general has little occasion to dread the results.

When the primary elections are out of the way, Georgians generally will have an opportunity to divert their minds from politics to ways and means of making the interstate fair a howling success.

For the average schoolboy in Atlanta the melancholy days are almost here.

Some candidates might well pattern after the English and "stand" instead of run for office, as running doesn't seem to get them where they long to be.

This is the season of oratory, political fireworks and also-rans.

Our governor-elect demonstrated that he is something of a runner as well as a Walker.

"All is lost, save honor" is an expression as over-worked by disappointed erstwhile candidates and their friends the day after election as "the same to you" is on Christmas Eve, but somehow it denotes less spirit of cheer.

That disappointed DeKalb voter who fired into an automobile loaded with election celebrants will probably in time reach the conclusion that inflicting upon others the sting of buckshot is a mighty poor way of assuaging the sting of defeat.

By bringing the rail strike to an end as they did, Mr. Warfield's tactics demonstrated that the way to negotiate is to negotiate.

For reasons entirely aside from climatic considerations we would hardly recommend Smyrna to a Christian as a place to spend a fall vacation.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STANTON

When I Miss You From the Light.
I.
It's still a world of beauty—broad —in a line, and hills of light:
A wilderness of color, and over all the bright,
The cloudless sunshine streaming so that each breathing cloud
Is sending still sweet messages up to the skies of God.

II.
But something still is missing from the season's joy and grace:
The sweeter music of your voice—
The sunshine of your face:
The sunlight streaming 'round me hath little that is bright
When I miss you from the blossoms
When I miss you from the light.

Word From Br'er Williams.
The road for heaven is straight enough, but folks will wobble on de way.
I dunno what of Adam thought of de world 'w'en he first gazed on it, but he sho' did lay low 'w'en he seen de trouble comin'!

Love That Lives Forever.
I.
Light and Joy, and a world made new,
And sweet is each endeavor:
Heaven that dreams in the eyes of
And Love that lives forever.

II.
Thorny way, but a flower of May
'That fades from the garden never,
And sweeter words than the angels say
Is Love that lives forever.

III.
And your love, like a rose, on my heart
And never a storm shall sever,
And the only thing that I sing, my dear,
Is Love that lives forever.

Weather Note.
Here is a timely little sermon on the weather from an exchange:
"Be cheerful! There's nothing in the round of daily life so destined to detract from general amiability as weather-growls of discontent."

A Sweet Old Story.
For all the stormy flags unfurled
Life's still a sweet old story;
There's so much joy in the rich,
round world
It keeps us shoutin' "Glory!"

Just when the storm has dimmed the stars
And given a thunder-warning,
The sun looks through the cloudy bars
And tells the world "Good morning!"

And so, we journey onward still,
And fear the journey never;
We'll get to Hallelujah Hill,
And pitch our tents forever!

Log Cabin Philosophy.
Satan meanin' ez black ez what he painted, but he's too black for de white-washed saints ter bresh agin'.

De angels must laugh ter hear a healthy sinner prayin' fer his daily bread when dar's a hoe layin' idle in de furrow.

Sighin' because your dreams are slow in comin' true will never make de lean calf fat enuff ter killin'.

"DANGER SIGNALS."
A girl may like a boy
And meet him every night,
And still this be no reason
To give the boy a fright.

A girl may kiss a boy
And sit upon his knee,
And he no indication
That he will not long be free.

But, when she brushes off his coat,
And notes holes in his socks—
You may be doggone certain
That he's gonna hit the rocks."

Daughter of South,
Victrola Vocalist,
Coming to Atlanta

Miss Dorothy Dodd, a daughter of the south, whose voice has been heard below the Mason-Dixon line for some time through the medium of the Victrola, is coming south, making personal appearances with her pianist, in at Leaw Theatre. Miss Dodd is scheduled to appear in Atlanta at Leaw's
Grand theatre on next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Born in Adirondack, Miss Dodd attended the Washington street high school in Athens, Ga., and later moved to Atlanta to take up vocal training.
While here she sang a number of concerts and later went to Birmingham and New Orleans, where she gathered a host of friends through concerts.

Miss Dodd possesses a rich contralto voice, unusually suited to the making of records and her services are in demand through all seasons of the year. Her first trip to the south being made through personal invitation of Marcus Loew, who met Miss Dodd during a concert at one of Got-tlieb's exclusive clubs.

Among the records made by Miss
Dodd are "The Dangerous Blues,"
"I Got the Blues, But I'm Just
Tired," "I'm Gonna Be a Woman
When He Wants Me," "When He's Coming Back," Miss Dodd's knowledge of the southern ditty has enabled her to make great success with the rendition of "Coon-Shout-in'" songs.

BITS OF PARIS LIFE

BY Q. O. M'INTYRE

Paris, September 20.—The Parisian admits that the best dressed woman in Paris is the gay creature of the half-world—the demi-mondaine.

The smartest cafes they are registered so that the head waiter may in case a patron desires a vivacious companion for the evening send for them. I am speaking of the superior type.
Not the nymph du pave.

The demi-mondaine in Paris has a certain standing. She has charge accounts at the best shops and if she dines long in the cafes signs the check. These are the real and magnificent homes along the Bois.

They ride in liveried broughams and gleam with the finest jewels.
These are the women who figure in a prominent marriage recently was once registered at the Cafe de Paris. All Paris knows this. One paper printed the picture of the woman with the superior type. It applauds.

It is a national weakness of France, it seems to me, to gild its vice. It is one reason why despite the magnificent beauty of architecture, the boulevards and the parks, one has a sense of ugliness. Paris boasts of the "House of All Nations," the bagnio, the "House of All Nations."

The demi-mondaine is welcomed at afternoon tea at the Ritz. The Catclain or any of the smart places, it appears to me, just a bit more enthusiastically than her respectable sister. For after all she is more expensive to entertain and her checks are more exacting.

A Parisian journalist tells me that Madame B., famous for her beauty and notorious for her liaisons, has been seen at the Ritz. She is the most exclusive jeweler on the Rue de la Paix. "And why not," he shrug-ged, "the poor creature earns it."

She is indeed, the most exclusive to the picture. When beauty fades they pay their toll. The old snuggle tooth

Week's Films Recommended By Better Films Committee

Every picture at every theater in Atlanta this week has been reviewed by the Better Film Committee of Atlanta, and each is recommended as a production of the highest type and suited to the family group.

Atlanta Theater—Thursday, Friday, Saturday, (matinee Saturday), Mitzi in "Lady Billy."

Forsyth Theater—All week. Forsyth players in "Scrambled Wives."

Lyric Theater (Keith vaudeville)—See advertising for program.

Loew's Grand Theater (vaudeville and pictures)—See advertising for program.

Howard Theater—All week. Wallace Reid and Bebe Daniels in "Nice People," and other screen features.

Mitzi in "Lady Billy."

(At Atlanta Theater.)

"Lady Billy" is the latest musical comedy in which Mitzi, the diminutive prima donna comedienne, is appearing. She will come to the Atlanta theater tonight, when she will begin an engagement of three nights and Saturday matinee. Mitzi is bringing the latest styles from Paris which run the gamut from flapper pajamas to "downtown" full length gowns with a few side lines of daring designs in gowns for beauties of the ensemble. The entire musical play has been reconstructed for the southern and western tour with a wide variety of styles found in the fashion marts of Europe augmenting American creations. Grecian drapes in numerous designs and colors are also listed in the costumeing of "Lady Billy."

KEITH VAUDEVILLE.

At the Lyric.

Keith's Lyric opens its doors this afternoon on a bill for the second half of the week which will be as featured by harmony as was the bill for the first three days, and even more endowing with comedy features. The Quixy Four, a quartet, headlines the aggregation. Other harmony, running the gamut of music from jazz to classics will be superimposed on the headline offering by Perrone and Oliver, respectively baritone and soprano. Hazel Moran will perform certain interesting and difficult feats with a well-trained lariat, chatting gaily with her audience betimes. Lee and Mann will arise with a novel and distinctly laughable comedy bit, and Rialto and La-

Funeral Services Are Now in Order For 'Lost Dollar'

Tell the bands to play a funeral march. Put crepe on the doors and windows. Wear black mourning-bands and a solemn expression on your face. Atlanta has a full-fledged citizen, in business here, who has checked the victorious march of the "stay-at-home-dollar," which was giving ample proof of the value of the "buy at home" plan. This merchant has put the famous dollar out of the demonstrating business. He has withdrawn it from circulation.

The mantle of charity will be drawn over the citizen and his name will not be published. It is certain that he will be deeply penitent and will clothe himself in sack cloth and ashes when he realizes the enormity of his offense.

The "stay-at-home-dollar" was circulated in a note book during the week of the manufacturers' exhibition to demonstrate how many purchases could be made in one week by a dol-

"Nice People"

(At the Howard.)
William de Mille has struck the keynote of today's most happily in "Nice People," now at the Howard theater. The modern jazz spirit pervades our times as well as the possible remedy therefor, are clearly and most entertainingly depicted.

Without preaching in the least, the picture demonstrates that the girls and boys of today have too much leisure for indulgence in what may be easily developed into harmful social relationships. The theme back of it stands out clearly throughout without intruding itself to the detriment of the story.

"Scrambled Wives"

(At the Forsyth.)
"Scrambled Wives" is one of the great comedies of the past century and its meeting with a hearty response from Atlanta audiences. It is going over big at the Forsyth this week. Managing Director Baldwin has spared no pains to make the production as nearly identical with the Broadway production as is physically possible. The members of the company, from J. L. Little and Miss Woodbury, the popular leads, down through the entire cast, are letter perfect.

Next week The Forsyth Players will present the enduring comedy-drama,

"Beaux and Belles"

(At Loew's Grand.)
A complete change of program is offered at Loew's Grand theater today and tonight. Five excellent acts of vaudeville headed by the big feature act Beaux and Belles and a new program of refined motion picture attractions.

Beaux and Belles, the top-line attraction for today, Friday and Saturday, and one of the best acts of its kind now playing in vaudeville, brings five beautiful soloists in artistic musical gems. There are two men and three young ladies in the company, all gifted with voices of rare quality. Their repertoire ranges from classical, through operatic selections to the over popular songs of the day. The act is presented with special scenery and elaborate costumes.

Four other fine acts are also scheduled. Rose and Barton, creators of character nonsense, the Washington Trio in village choir practice, Nita Johnson, dainty delineator of character.

"Nice People"

William de Mille has struck the keynote of today's most happily in "Nice People," now at the Howard theater. The modern jazz spirit pervades our times as well as the possible remedy therefor, are clearly and most entertainingly depicted.

Without preaching in the least, the picture demonstrates that the girls and boys of today have too much leisure for indulgence in what may be easily developed into harmful social relationships. The theme back of it stands out clearly throughout without intruding itself to the detriment of the story.

"Scrambled Wives"

(At the Forsyth.)
"Scrambled Wives" is one of the great comedies of the past century and its meeting with a hearty response from Atlanta audiences. It is going over big at the Forsyth this week. Managing Director Baldwin has spared no pains to make the production as nearly identical with the Broadway production as is physically possible. The members of the company, from J. L. Little and Miss Woodbury, the popular leads, down through the entire cast, are letter perfect.

Next week The Forsyth Players will present the enduring comedy-drama,

"Love Is an Awful Thing"

(At the Rialto.)
Bearing the extremely interesting title, "Love is an Awful Thing," there is an unusually enjoyable screen farce at the Rialto theater this week.

One of the most hilarious and uproarious, joyous farces seen on the screen in a long time. That accomplished comedian Owen Moore, last seen in "A Poor Simp" and "The Chicken in the Case," has the leading role. He is ably supported in the fun making by Douglas Carter, the long, lean, lanky gentleman of color who was so prominent in "A Poor Simp."

Another comedian of real ability and international reputation as a funster who appears in the cast is Snitz Edwards.

Emphatic repudiation of all revolutionary propaganda, foreign or domestic, was a leading feature of the recent annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

Mr. Penticott senior made a good recovery, at least, it was good all things considered. He had had a stroke and would never be his old self again and would have to retire finally from business, but, within very definite limits, he would be able to get about again all right. My guardian sent him down to a jolly little place in Hertfordshire, in charge of two nurses, a valet, a cook and a housekeeper. And oh, my goodness, the work his sudden illness had landed on us. "Us" being the junior department of Penticott & Penticott. The old man had just embarked upon a fairly complicated transfer of property case. A huge Dorset estate was changing hands, and the business in connection with it was appalling. Especially as it had to be concluded with all possible dispatch. How we worked; I think during a fortnight we didn't leave the office before. I clock every evening and then my guardian worked at home, I know. He began to look awfully worn and faded. But through it all he was the uttermost brick to everyone working for him.

One day he surprised me by saying suddenly: "Are you free on Sunday?" "Yes," I replied, wondering. "My uncle has asked me to take you down to see him. He seems to have taken a great fancy to you, Miss Graham." "Because I'm like a woman he once loved, I thought; and aloud: 'I'd love to go.' " "So Sunday?" "As ever is. May I take you down in the car?" "Would you?" "Yes, rather, and we'll have a holiday from this infernal grind." "That will be rather nice," I agreed.

"I'm working you too hard . . . I feel awfully guilty. . . But something, I don't get on as well with anyone else. . . You've got such a knack of making things easy. . . he said contritely. "I'm . . . so glad," I said, not daring to look at him, lest he should see just how glad I was. How happy I was! And how hard I tried not to be so absurdly, unreasonably happy; it's nothing to him. I told myself. But it's a whole day with him to me. One whole, glorious, unbusiness day."

And it was a glorious day, too; misty first thing in the morning, but clearing to gorgeous sunshine later on, and warm, with the fresh, capricious warmth of the first touch of spring. We had a jolly run. Nicholas Penticott had bought me a big fur coat of his own, and I sat beside him in the little two-seater, all snugged up in it, my face swathed in a chiffon veil. I was glad of that veil; there comes a time when you can keep the insane happiness out of your eyes, and I felt that, sitting beside him, wrapped up in his coat, the prospect of a whole day with him before me, that time had come to me. It was hard enough to keep it out of my voice, when all the time I just wanted to shout and sing out that whatever was to happen in the future, I was glad now . . . Glad, and glad, and glad . . . And then some . . .

An hour and a half brought us into the white and green of the fresh Hertfordshire country; white roads and green pastures. And the air, and the trilling of the birds, and the first haze of green appearing on the hedge-rows. We hardly spoke at all; we were too busy enjoying it all. Once my guardian raised his head and sniffed the breeze. "Lord! but it's good!" he said, in a voice of praise and thanksgiving.

We found Mr. Penticott reclining on a chaise longue beside the open window of his big, airy room, surrounded to the chin in rugs and the two nurses and the valet trying to persuade him to take a cup of chicken broth. But he was, persimmon, and when we appeared he flapped everyone else unceremoniously away. "Well, Nick, well!" he began, in an old, grumbling way. "You've been the deuce of a time getting down here."

But he extended both his feeble hands and just hugged my guardian's one big strong one.

"Say, but it's fine to see you looking so well, sir," my guardian replied, tactfully avoiding the reproach. "I remained a little to one side, but the old chap called to me."

"So you came, did you? It wasn't too much trouble to come and see the ugly old man, eh?"

"I was so glad to hear that you thought enough of me to ask me to come," I replied taking the hand he offered.

"Child, but it's like a breath of spring just to look at you . . . He raised his wistful old eyes to my face."

"A breath of spring and a ghost of youth," he added with a sigh. "Sit down, both of you. What are you standing for . . . Are you so anxious to run away from me?"

We sat down. One each side of him and told him the office news until the nurse came to wheel him away for his nap.

"Come back when I wake, ghost girl," he said, pulling me down and looking into my face; then, pushing me away again: "All right, all right, all right. Get away now. . . Can't you see I'm tired of you?"

We found out from the nurse that he would sleep until the early afternoon, say, about three o'clock; it was now just past noon.

"We'll go for a spin, shall we?" suggested my guardian.

I agreed. "Let's take lunch," he suggested further. I agreed again, and he departed to the nether regions to make love to the cook and see what could be done. A large part of the sandwiches at a neatly dissected cold fowl was the result, and armed with these we went out to the little car and started off.

"Jolly, isn't it?" he remarked, as we sped along the white road. "Nicholas Penticott, that is scarcely the word. But I realized that it was, extremely jolly, and on we went."

Spring a lovely looking pine wood, we stopped and got out to explore. "Stand on a carpet of pine needles he asked me."

"Good enough spot for lunch?" "Is it a good enough lunch for the spot? Not a very brilliant joke, but we laughed as if it had been. A broad, grass road, characteristic of Hertfordshire country, ran sheer to the edge of the wood, and even penetrated it sufficiently for us to bring the car within sight."

"Why, mad?" "Well, to picnic sitting wrapped up in fur . . ."

"Besides . . ." he began, and stopped. "Besides . . .?" I prompted.

His head was bent over the package, but he looked up with a quick smile. "It's good to be mad sometimes."

Then, as I didn't reply: "Don't you think so?" "It is . . . generally rather refreshing," I said.

"Generally? Are you often mad, then?" "No . . . not often."

"But sometimes, eh?" "No . . . not even sometimes."

"Once, anyway," he persisted. "No," I said. "Not even once."

"Then how can you know it is generally?" "I don't know . . ."

"But you said . . ."

"I know . . . But I didn't mean anything."

"You must have meant something."

"I was just guessing."

"Oh, and founding your guesses upon what?"

"Just . . . oh . . . just . . . well . . ."

"Today?" "Well, yes, I think it was today."

"Do you feel that today is refreshing?" "No, no."

"So do I," he said. "Do you always cross-examine people like this?"

"I inquired."

"Cross-examine? Was I cross-examine?" "I didn't realize. Awful cheek, but I suppose I was carried away by my interest in the subject."

He broke off, laughing again, then: "Come on, let's begin."

He stretched out a hand to the packet of sandwiches and I did the same. He was a second before me; his hand closed on the packet, my hand upon his. Quick as thought his other hand was over mine, and for a moment there we were, playing the child's game of piling up hands, breathing very quickly, and laughing rather absurdly.

He drew his hand away hurriedly, and said casually: "There used to be words to that game. . . Something about patience and a lady's man, I think. . . Or am I mixing things up?"

"You are mixing things up a bit," I replied, as steadily as I could, and applied myself unaided to spreading out the sandwiches.

The chicken presented a problem, which Nicholas Penticott put into words when, looking rather dismayed, he asked: "You go on to . . . gnaw the bones . . . or what?"

"I'm going to gnaw the bones," I replied promptly. His face cleared. "That clears away my last doubts of you," he said.

"Oh, what were your last doubts of me?" "I was afraid perhaps you wouldn't gnaw the bones," he replied, gravely. I laughed.

He gave me a wing and presented himself with a drumstick and we tackled them with the gusto and disregard of elegance that our very ancient forefathers might have shown.

"Joy, but I'm hungry," he said after a few moments of hunger appearing silence.

"You look it," I replied, with conscious superiority, flourishing a clean-picked wing bone.

"We both seem to have very fair—er—appetites," he said delicately. "Have you forgotten that there is such a thing as an office anywhere?"

I had; I had also forgotten that there was such a person as Jane Graham. It seemed so perfectly right a natural to be pecking in this wood with Nicholas Penticott that I was completely Judy Grey again.

"Yes, I had; you reminded me," I said. "Sorry; forget it again, will you?"

"If you make me." "Can't you?" "Can't you?"

To describe the utter ecstasy of those hours of our picnic would be quite impossible. Yet they were passed in the lightest kind of nonsensical banter. Once for a moment he admitted to me, he admitted to being 34 years old and being guardian to a girl who had made him no end of trouble.

But for the most part we just basked in the beauty of the day, and amused ourselves by building of words a mythical house which would suit the Hertfordshire Downs.

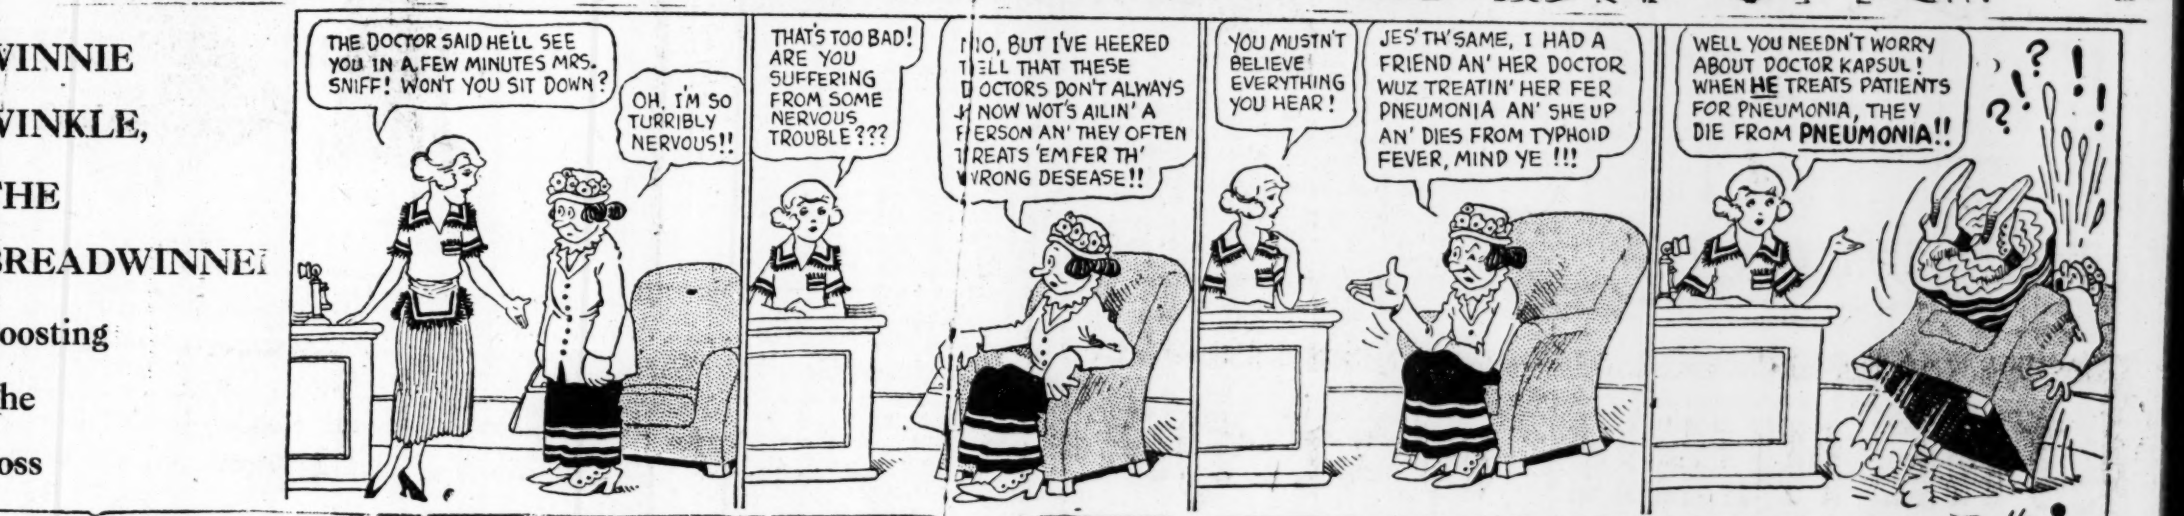

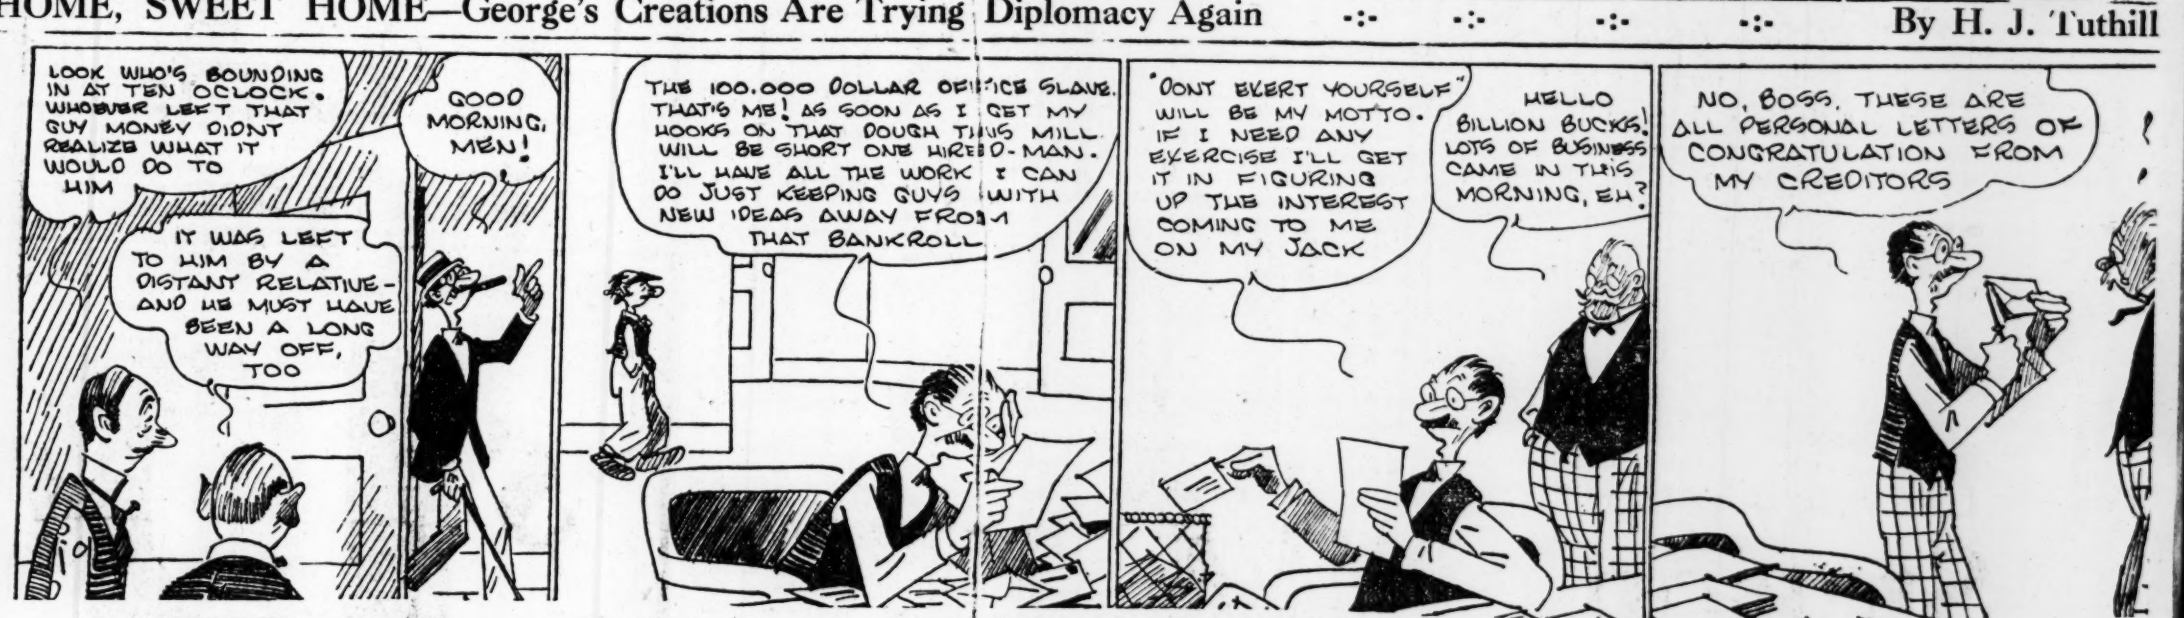

CHAPTER XIV. We had been working very hard at the office, so that it was not surprising I should one day find my guardian sound asleep at his desk. Geraldine Maidstone called, recognized me, and very angry because I would not see him, threatened to tell my secret.

CHAPTER XV. Nicholas Penticott slept bang through till 4 o'clock. Then, hearing him stir, I gave him 15 minutes' grace; after which I took him in some tea and some sandwiches that I'd been out and bought, and a chunk of rather pleasant cake.

He was at his desk by this time and looked up when I entered. "Hello!" he said amiably. "Have I been to sleep?"

"You have, rather," I admitted, and set the little tray before him. "Is it a birthday or anything?" "No, I thought you might be hungry."

"No, I am, by Jove. Ravenous. Anybody been?"

Church Murders Probe Pointing To One Suspect

New Brunswick, N. J., September 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—The snare spread by the prosecuting and detective staffs of two counties five days ago for the person or persons responsible for the killing of Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. John the Evangelist, and Mrs. James Mills, choir leader in the church were closing in tonight, the police said, on a single suspect.

"We will not be rushed in this case," said Prosecutor Stricker, of Middlesex county. To make an arrest now would be to open the doors for habeas corpus proceedings which would force us to disclose the lines along which we have been working.

Detectives of Middlesex and Somerset counties were reported working in widely scattered points of New Jersey throughout the day and all were understood to be working to make more tangible the theory in which the unnamed suspect is the central figure.

Detective Totten and members of the prosecutive staff of Somerset questioned every member of the family at the Hall home. Totten carried with him the revolver found yesterday, which is believed to be the weapon with which the clerkman and Mrs. Mills were killed.

Detective quoted Willis Stevens as denying that the gun was his, while at the same time reiterating that he had a pistol.

Detective Totten said he asked

Stevens, who is a town character, and figure known throughout the country for eccentricities to repeat again his account of what he did on last Thursday night, the assumed time of the double shooting. Mrs. Hall had told the police early in the investigation that her brother accompanied her when she went out to the church about midnight Thursday in quest of her husband. While declining at first to speak in corroboration of his sister's story Willie is reported to have said later in a conversation at the fire house that he wasn't with his sister on Thursday night. Detective Totten said he retracted this statement during today's questioning, which lasted three hours.

Examine Garage

Mrs. Hall also was questioned as were servants and a Mrs. Sallie Peters, who said she was "an old friend of the family" and had been a bridesmaid at Mrs. Hall's wedding. She said she had been visiting Mrs. Hall since the tragedy.

While at the Hall home, the detectives made a minute examination of the Hall garage, which holds two cars. They paid particular attention to the pattern of the tires on the smaller of the two machines. Willie Stevens accompanied Totten's men into the garage. He did not leave with them, but remained in the garage with doors shut for some time. Inquiries for Stevens at the Hall home directly after the detectives had left brought the statement "Mr. Stevens was not at home."

Detectives later returned and took Stevens and one of the Hall servants to the prosecutor's office where they were questioned at some length. Stevens declined to make any statement after leaving the prosecutor's office and returned at once to the Hall residence with the servant. Detectives declined to say whether the servant had been questioned at all but admitted that the Hall family was kept ing a close watch over the slain rector's brother-in-law, James Mills, husband of the slain woman and his daughter, Charlotte, 16, were not questioned today. Somerset county detectives said they "were being left out of the investigation." It was learned, however, that the home had been searched particularly for any papers which might throw light on the relations which existed between Mrs. Mills and the rector.

Search Homestead

The Phillips homestead was the scene of the minutest search throughout the day. The rambling, two-story house said to be nearly 100 years old and called "the house of mystery" first was searched and evidence was found that it had been recently occupied.

In going over the run down little farm, detectives came on a lane, smaller than either de Russys or the so-called "lovers" lane which have figured prominently in the investigation. A narrow road of red dust which winds an uncertain way off Easton avenue, the main thoroughfare, this new road is said to offer an excellent way for approaching unseen "the house of mystery" and the old orchard in which the bodies of the rector and the rector's wife were found.

At the end of the lane the detectives discovered tire marks left in sharp relief in the mud. Photographs were made of these tracks, which detectives called the most valuable clues found in the entire day of investigation.

Ford Is Seeking Way to Secure Coal for Plant

Company Officials Trying Desperately to Find Means of Ending Shutdown.

Detroit, September 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—Henry Ford and his executives are working "almost day and night" in an effort to find a way out of the Ford Motor company's coal problems and the manufacturer is determined to reopen his Detroit plants "at the earliest hour possible," it was learned by the Associated Press today.

The conference between Mr. Ford and his executives, frequently continue until far into the night.

Mr. Ford was represented as keeping unshaken in his resolve to keep his plants closed until coal prices have swung back to what he considers a fair figure. Although secrecy surrounds the moves of the company officials, it is known, no effort is being spared to find a way whereby coal can be procured at a cost in line with the manufacturer's ideals in this respect.

Mr. Ford is said to attach considerable significance to the interstate commerce commission's action in revising its priority orders, lifting the ban on shipments of coal to industries not classed as essential a class in which the automotive business had been placed. He believes, however, this is only a step toward restoration of normal conditions. He has taken the view all along, it was learned, that the commission should have adopted a "hands off" policy from the first.

All efforts to learn the probable duration of the shutdown in the Ford plants that has thrown approximately 70,000 Ford employees in the Detroit district out of employment met with failure today. It was learned, however, that the company is receiving greater supplies of coal than it was before the shutdown. While Mr. Ford and his department managers were seeking a way out of the difficulty, the job of reopening the Ford plants was being given serious study by the Detroit board of commerce, which is making an effort to obtain coal for the motor concerns.

tractors, because the rail heads were financially interested in the coal mines on their systems, and that they had "created a coal shortage by lining their sidings with loaded coal cars."

Among those who attended the conference were Frank Page, chairman of the state highway commission of North Carolina, and C. M. Upshaw, chief engineer of the state; W. S. Keller, state highway engineer of Alabama; Charles H. Moorefield, state highway engineer of South Carolina; W. R. Neel, state highway engineer of Georgia; J. R. Draney, president of the Asphalt association, who presided at the meeting; H. Spencer, of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, and J. S. Helm, of the Standard Oil company of Louisiana.

Banquet Program

At the banquet in the evening J. R. Draney, president of the Asphalt association, presided.

Colonel Claude N. Sapp, floor leader in the South Carolina legislature from Richland county, was one of the principal speakers. In an effective address he emphasized the need of good roads, and the necessity of bond issues. He said that regardless of the additional levy on property, necessary to float good road bond issues, more than paid for themselves in increased property valuations. "With good roads," he said, "there will be painted school houses, and any number of white churches."

Colonel Sapp spoke of the progress of good roads in this state, and told how many years it took to educate the people to the value of hard surfaced highways. He said there was plenty of opposition to the road programs, but once they were established those who owned property bordering on the concrete or asphalt surfaced highways, wouldn't have them torn up.

for twice what the additional levy had been.

Predicts Road Program

John N. Holder, chairman of the Georgia highway commission, made a brief address following Colonel Sapp. He said that "although Georgia is a little slow sometimes, in getting 'squared away' on some things, the finish invariably found the Cracker state will be in the lead." He said that the Georgia good roads program would materialize next June or July when the legislature would authorize a bond issue ample to cure for the highway needs of the state.

Other speakers were Frank Page, chairman of the North Carolina highway commission; W. S. Keller, chief engineer of the Alabama highway commission; R. Keith Compton, chairman of the paving commission of the city of Baltimore; W. K. Neel, state highway engineer of Georgia, and Charles M. Upshaw, chief engineer of the North Carolina highway department.

Their addresses were brief, and all of them brought out the need of good roads in all the southern states, and the necessity of bond issues to cover the cost of the projects.

Engineer Upshaw laid particular emphasis on the mechanical problems in road building. He pointed out the lessons taught road engineers since the beginning of the construction of hard surface roads. He urged the appointment of capable personnel to handle the construction problems, citing instances in the past when costly mistakes had been made.

During the banquet Miss Anna Mae Coleman and Miss Doris Cornwell, two of Atlanta's own entertainers, danced. Miss Cornwell is a pupil of Miss Coleman, who conducts a dancing class.

Thursday the delegates to the conference will take a trip to Stone Mountain, preceded by a meeting of the board of directors of the Asphalt association. There will be committee meetings in the afternoon. The banquet Wednesday concluded the general conference.

John Carson, champion fiddler of Georgia, who recently arrived in Atlanta to take part in the fiddler's contest to be held in the Auditorium next week, entertained the members and guests of the Asphalt association during the banquet at the Ansley hotel Wednesday night.

His wife, 14-year-old daughter and grown son assisted him. The daughter clog danced, the son played a second fiddle to his father. Mrs. Carson assisted her champion husband in the "hoe down" numbers.

ST. SIMONS HIGHWAY WILL COST $300,000

Brunswick, Ga., September 20.—The St. Simons highway commission received estimates from the state highway department today showing the approximate cost of the construction of a highway to St. Simons from Brunswick. It is estimated the cost will be $300,000, which is well within the amount of the bond issue authorized by Glynn county and the city of Brunswick.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, old corn, or corn between the toes, and the blisters, without soreness or irritation. —(adv.)

STEPS FOR RELIEF OF ROAD-BUILDING

road building material since the strikes have been settled.

He told of the inability of Florida contractors to secure a supply of open top freight railway equipment for the movement of road materials, and of the subsequent hopeless situation that even blocked the movement of coal, in addition to crippling the road building programs in the south.

Bunch Cars at Mines

It was charged during the conference that the reason for the shortage of cars was due to the railroads bunching their open top equipment at coal mines creating a vast surplus that even blocked the movement of coal, in addition to crippling the road building programs in the south.

Contractors in open discussion following the session asserted that the railroads had more than enough cars to relieve the fuel shortage that resulted from the coal miners' strike, and that in order to create an imaginary coal shortage they have contrived to block their own traffic that it might appear to the public that there is an actual shortage of rail road equipment.

L. M. Law of the New Orleans refining company, stated that although it was possible for his company to load their refined asphalt in their own tank cars, the movement to their destination was hampered by the railroads who sidetracked their shipments at every opportunity. Law stated further that when cars arrived at their destination the materials were not used, owing to the shortage of sand, gravel and crushed stone used in connection with asphalt paving.

Urges Immediate Action

The conference passed a resolution, urging that the American association of state highway officials take action before the interstate commerce commission and railroads, relative to the acute situation.

The same resolution will be forwarded to the American society for municipal improvements, convening in Cleveland October 2 to 6. The action was taken upon the suggestion of Col. R. K. Compton, chairman of the American society for municipal improvements, who attended the conference.

It was voted, too, to support the efforts being made by the national sand and gravel producers, and the national association of crushed stone producers who are not members of the interstate commerce commission seeking to find ways and means for the movement of road materials to points of consumption.

It was brought out prior to the passing of the resolutions that the huge supply of coal cars in the United States is idle 70 per cent of the time and that if the railroads so desired they could release equipment ample to allow the road building in every part of the country to progress.

Commission Attached

Charges were made against the interstate commerce commission accusing the body of grossly misunderstanding the needs of the engineers, contractors and material men, describing them as functioning as a "bureaucratic organization unmindful of the situation they have created."

Railroad officials were charged with discriminating against the con-

Armory Gambling Was 'Club Feature,' Major Testifies

Gambling System of Hospital Unit Told Macon Board by Major Klausman.

Macon, Ga., September 20.—Major Marcus Klausman, of Atlanta, commander of hospital unit No. 114, national guard, was still on the stand in his own defense when a military board investigating alleged irregularities in that organization, recessed at 6 o'clock tonight until tomorrow morning.

It was brought out during the questioning by Colonel J. J. Travis, chairman of the board, that while the books of the company showed heavy expenditures there were few credits. Gambling was a "club feature," Major Klausman declared. He admitted that he took part in the games and authorized a "take out" for the "kitty" for the use of the rooms.

Colonel Travis referred to an item for $2 for cards, when trying to find out if Major Klausman purchased the cards and chips used in the poker game.

"That may have been for postcards," replied Major Klausman. An item of $50 expenses to LaGrange was questioned. Major Klausman said that he took a squad of men to LaGrange, trying to sell jury exemptions, but failed in the effort.

A bazar, prizefight and other ventures that he led the club had been the cause of his financial troubles. Major Klausman declared that he had a $335 expense for the bazar, with no credits, was questioned by Colonel Travis.

Asked why he thought Major J. M. Sigan called Adjutant-General Van Holt Nash and informed him that the company was "in a hell of a fix;" Major Klausman replied, "I can imagine."

"What do you imagine?" asked Travis. "I imagine the delay in aiding me was deliberate and the call to General Nash was to put me in an embarrassing light before him."

Grave of Mystery Surrenders Body For Funeral Today

Capt. Curtwright, Killed in 1862, to Be Given Funeral at LaGrange Today.

LaGrange, Ga., September 20.—(Special).—Funeral services will be held Thursday for Captain Jacobus Curtwright, who was killed October 8, 1862, at the battle of Perryville, Ky., but whose resting place was shrouded in mystery until the discovery of his grave a few days ago by Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, who is his son-in-law.

The finding of the grave in Kentucky was the end of a search that had been carried on virtually ever since the death of Captain Curtwright, who was member of the LaGrange light guards. The remains have been disinterred and shipped to LaGrange. They will be reinterred Thursday by the side of his wife, in Hillview cemetery.

Military honors will be given by Camp No. 405, United Confederate Veterans. Captain Curtwright has one daughter, Mrs. W. J. McClure, who still lives in LaGrange, besides a large number of relatives in Troup county.

Miss Bell Is Honored At Many Bright Parties

Miss Julia Bell, an October bride-elect, was the central figure at the bridge-tennis given Wednesday afternoon by Miss Marie Porter at her home on St. Charles place, and sharing honors with Miss Bell were Miss Mary Dillard Harber, of Gainesville.

Pink and white roses were used to decorate the apartments where the game was played. French novelties were awarded as prizes, and the honor guests were presented hand-made lingerie.

Miss Porter was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. George H. Porter, Mrs. John Wilhite and Mrs. John Bell.

Miss Porter wore a gown of brown lace over brown satin with sash of jade tulle. Miss Bell's gown was of black canton crepe, trimmed in gold, and a black picture hat. Miss Harber was dressed in blue canton crepe, embroidered in red beads.

Mrs. Porter wore black chantilly lace veiling black satin. Mrs. Bell wore a gown of black crepe. Mrs.

Wilhite's gown was of blue canton crepe.

Invited to meet the honor-guests were: Misses Elizabeth Barrett, Marguerite Greenham, Dorothy Walker, Elizabeth Wesley, Dorothy Bryant, Laura Margaret Hoppe, Betty Putnam, Mary Reid, Caroline Cole, Lella Ponder, Louise Scruggs, Delphine Popham, Elizabeth Parsons, Kathleen Law, Joyce White, Jane Davison, Gertrude Gilbert, Elsie Lewis, Lillie Mae Bailey, Isabelle Kemp, Mary Dillard Harber, of Gainesville, Annette Harber, of Commerce, and Louise de Loring and Ethel Boyd Beck, both of Dallas, Texas; Mrs. Howard Bailey, Mrs. John Smetzer, Mrs. John Pearson, Mrs. Oscar Gower, Mrs. Allen Jernigan, Mrs. Van Wilkinson, Mrs. Aubrey Milam, Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris, III, Mrs. Charles Cook, Mrs. Desouz Rice, Mrs. Robert Davis, Mrs. Morgan Wynn.

Miss Elsie Lewis will entertain September 28th, at a bridge party at the East Lake Country club, in honor of Miss Bell. Miss Lola Buchanan will entertain at a shower in honor of Miss Bell, on October 5. Miss Lella Ponder will compliment Miss Bell with a party, October 4.

Mrs. W. B. Reeves will entertain at a luncheon, October 11, in honor of Miss Bell.

Among other entertaining for this popular bride-elect, will be Miss Joyce White, Miss Helen Gamble and Mrs. Aubrey Milam.

Attractions at Theaters for Children's Matinee

In celebration of Better Films week the boys' and girls' matinees at the Howard and Alpha theaters Saturday morning will offer exceptional programs, and as additional attractions special souvenirs will be given away at both performances.

"Daffodil Dainties" will be offered to every child who attends the Howard and a child's "Packard coupe" will be drawn for at the Alpha. This automobile is a perfect reproduction of the standard Packard coupe and is large enough for a child to drive. It is upholstered in gray velvet, has glass windows that can be raised and lowered and beautiful silk curtains.

The movie programs at each theater offers unusual entertainment. "Hanook of the North," the picture of Alaskan life which has created such wide attention because of the scenes actually made in the land of the snow and ice by an explorer who spent fourteen months with an Eskimo family and photographed them as they actually live. This picture is the most remarkable one of its kind ever made, showing the Eskimo trapping seals, catching fish, butting with walrus, the manner of building their "igloo" or home, how they live and what they eat and wear.

"Rumber Place," a Harold Lloyd comedy, and a Bob and Bill adventure, "A Day in the Wilds," will complete the movie program.

Professor Sutton, who was unable to speak at the last performance, will talk to the children Saturday morning on "Why We Go to School."

Saturday morning will see the inauguration of a new serial at the Alpha, "Buffalo Bill," which will continue for many weeks. "Bonds of Steel" is the title of the picture. In addition a two-reel educational comedy with a monkey, dog and horse, "A False Alarm," and another comedy, "A Fight in Mid-Air," will also be shown.

Chaperons at the Howard will include Mrs. Porter Langston, Mrs. W. P. Lemmon, Mrs. George Langston, Mrs. George Langston, Mrs. G. H. Guy and Mrs. Van Henson.

Dinner Parties At Cascade Terrace.

Several dinner parties were given at Cascade Terrace during the past week.

The Young Men's Bible Class, of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, entertained their friends with a dinner Thursday evening. Covers were placed for 40.

W. L. Sisk had a party of out-of-town guests Friday evening. Covers were placed for 10.

The nurses and physicians of the Piedmont Sanitarium were entertained at a dance Wednesday evening. Music was furnished by the Dugan orchestra.

Mrs. Hugh Carlton gave a gride-luncheon, Wednesday, in honor of Mrs. James Duncan, of Birmingham, Ala., guest of Mrs. C. B. Allen. Covers were placed for twelve.

Mrs. Carl Farris gave a "spend the day" Tuesday, in honor of Mrs. Oona Hooks, of Memphis, Tenn., guest of Mrs. Charlie D. Tibbans and Mrs. Blattie Davis, of Gainesville, Fla., guest of Mrs. W. E. Cason. Twelve guests were invited.

Miss Spiller Weds Mr. Suggs At Quiet Home Ceremony

The wedding of Miss Marguerite Spiller and J. B. Suggs which was solemnized at the home of the bride on St. Charles place, was a quiet event of Wednesday evening. Dr. Alfred Porter officiated.

The house was beautifully decorated with Ophelia roses, palms and ferns. The altar, banked with palms, held white roses and burning white tapers.

Before the ceremony Miss Blanche Roberts rendered several musical selections on the piano and Mrs. Susie Kennedy sang "At Dawning" and "O, Promise Me."

Miss Louise Grande, maid of honor, wore rose taffeta and carried Ophelia roses.

Miss Mary Myers, bridesmaid, wore cream colored crepe and carried American beauty roses.

Duke Farnsworth acted as best man.

The bride was lovely in a fall model of dark blue duvetyne, with hat to match. Her corsage was of bride's roses and valley lilies.

Immediately after the ceremony an informal reception was held.

Mrs. R. J. Spiller, mother of the bride, wore blue Canton crepe with a corsage of Ophelia roses. She was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Donald Morrison and Mrs. A. M. Pound.

Mrs. Morrison wore black lace and Mrs. Pound wore brown satin.

Miss Ruth Fischer and Miss Beuna Wyatt served nunch.

After the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Suggs left for a trip to points of interest in the east.

Miss McNeal Is Hostess.

Miss Celeste McNeal entertained 24 guests Wednesday evening. The house was decorated with ferns, and large vases held cut flowers and were placed in the living room while in the dining room pink and white was the color scheme. In the center of the table was a large birthday cake with its 17 pink candles. At each place were little pink baskets filled with candy. Pink tulle was draped from the chandelier and tied at each corner of the table in large bows. During the evening radio furnished music and a musical contest was greatly enjoyed.

Those present were: Misses Gladys Darrington, Myrene Weeks, Margaret Peck, Virginia Cook, Callie Patton, Janet Martin, Annie Blanche Harris, Ellen Graham, Vera Mae Wall, Sarah McKinney Celeste McNeal and Martha Anderson; H. Side Talks

Some Dress Mistakes.
There is an old saying that the man or woman who makes the same mistake twice is a fool.
It is a good saying to quote. I shall not doubt be moved to quote it some day when it fits in my theme.
But it isn't true. Or if it is, there are many people in the world who aren't fools. I doubt if anyone over the age of one day can lay claim to the distinction. In fact the only individuals I know who could honestly say that they hadn't made the same mistake twice couldn't say it at all because they hadn't yet learned to talk.

This Time Is Different.
The man who never learns anything from his mistakes is a fool but with most of us it is a slow process. One forgets so easily and then one always hopes that this time is going to be different.
I wonder if it would help us any to write down some of the conclusions that our most common mistakes lead us to read them over once in a while. I am going to try, or rather I have been trying it. Perhaps you will smile when I tell you in what field. Perhaps you will decide to do likewise. That will probably depend firstly on your sex, secondly on your own liability to mistakes.

Now Just the Right Thing.
I have just made a mistake in the use of my dress allowance which, though small, is a mistake that I have made so often that I simply cannot excuse myself. And yesterday afternoon when I had it brought home to me by not having just the thing to wear for a particular occasion, when I could have had it if I had spent those few dollars differently. I sat down and wrote the following rules for myself.

"Don't get separate skirts. You never get the good out of them. You don't look so well cut in two as you do in a whole frock. You are always tempted by rich new style and always sorry when you fall.
"Don't buy a winter suit. They are nice for some occasions but, on the whole, you get far better value out of a good looking coat and separate frocks.

The Dangerous Big Hat.
"Don't buy a large hat. You love them but they don't look well on you unless you are looking your best. Love them on other people.
"Don't buy too far ahead thinking you will stock up one year and not need to buy much the next. When the next comes you always want something else.

"Don't wander off from your regular color scheme. It costs too much in accessories to do that.
I wonder if these rules fit your case at all? Or, if they don't, I wonder if they suggest some similar rules for you?

A NOVEL INVENTION—THIS THREE-IN-ONE
You long for a hat for every costume and yet how they do count up. Whether thrift or just sheer ingenuity was at the bottom of it Marie Gay has found a solution. It is a three-in-one hat. It is large with a flexible brim which if rolled up in front becomes a Pierrette shape, if allowed to droop it is a true cabriolet poke and if turned up both front and back it is a chapeau a la Louis XVI.

Powell—Locke.

Eufaula, Ala., September 20.—(Special.)—A marriage of interest to a large circle of friends was that of Miss Clarissa Powell and Clifford Asbury Locke, Jr., which was beautifully solemnized at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Locke on Randolph street, Monday evening at 6 o'clock.

The bride and groom entered together and the ceremony was impressively performed by Rev. B. E. L. Harris, of the First Baptist church.
The bride was lovely in a fall traveling suit of beaver cloth, trimmed with platinum gray fur and wearing a gray hat with gray wings. She carried a bouquet of pink Richmond roses and valley lilies. She is the attractive daughter of Mrs. Adeline Powell, of Alexander City, Ala., and since residing here for the past year as X-ray technician at the Britt infirmary, has won many friends by her winsome personality. The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Locke, and is held in high esteem and is promising life in the social, club and business life of this city.

The young couple left on the 8 o'clock train for a bridal trip to Atlanta and other points, and on their return will be at home with the groom's parents. Following the ceremony a reception was held which was largely attended.
Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Calloway, Mrs. Homer Dimon, of Columbus, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Jackson, Monroe, La.; Mrs. Adeline Powell, Alexander City; Mr. Carl Strang, Atlanta; Mrs. W. R. Patterson, Atlanta.

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

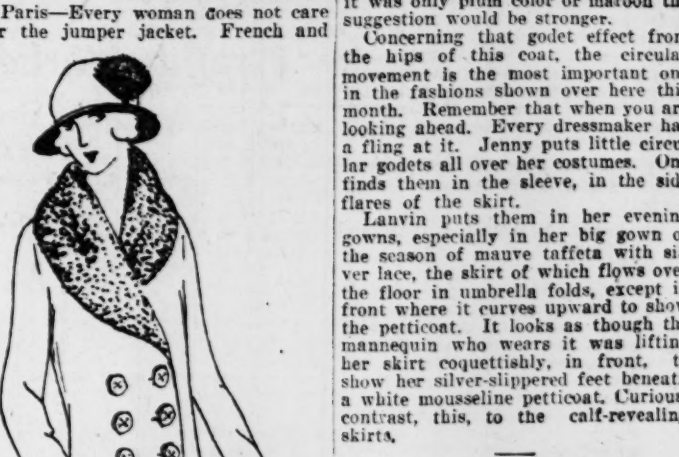

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this get two ounces of calomel powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dirt and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calomel powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition—(adv.)

Mother-To-Be, Read This—

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers. When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have dreamed of. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says: "With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used Mother's Friend and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Luncheon on Time.

One of the greatest difficulties of the return of school days for many housewives is the problem of having the middle meal of the day on time. If you are accustomed to having dinner in the middle of the day through the entire year then this is not so difficult. You are accustomed to planning your morning work with this in mind. But in the household where the man of the house does not come for midday dinner then the problem presents itself anew every autumn.
Not a few school children are really victims of improper or insufficient or too hastily eaten meals at noon. The housewife, absorbed in morning work about the house, does not realize that noon has come until the children are at the door. Then there is a hurried survey of the larder, children are kept waiting and have only a little time to eat their hastily prepared repast.

Really little time is saved by this method, and much harm may be done. Perhaps the best way to remedy the matter is to take the first steps for luncheon the first thing after breakfast. On cool days a soup is a very good midday for the children's lunch. This is best if it is one of the milk soups. If you have vegetables, carrots, spinach, celery, on hand these may be cooked tender and put through the vegetable press and then added to the milk and thickened within a short time before needed.

Desserts such as rice pudding, custard, junket, bread pudding may be made the first thing after breakfast and set in the icebox until luncheon time. They do not take much time in the middle of the day. (Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution.)

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Stop Weeping.
Peel the skin from a can of cold water or under the cold water faucet and they will not affect your eyes.

Salt to the Rescue.
Salt sprinkled on anything that has boiled over on the stove will smother the blaze and destroy the odor.

Boiled Ham.
Add a half-cupful of vinegar and two tablespoonfuls of grape juice to the water in which the ham is boiled and see how it will improve the flavor.

Food for Thought.
There is always one color in which a woman looks best, and if she is limited as to pocketbook, let her choose wisely and economically to keep pretty close to that one color?

THE draped silhouette has not passed by the fall dresses of wool weave. They, too, are long and slenderizing, with side drapes, coat dress style, with side fastenings—sleeve variations too numerous for description, and smart new neck lines.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS

Read This Letter from Mrs. W. S. Hughes

Greenville, Del.—"I was under the impression that my eldest daughter had some internal troubles ever since the first time her sickness began. She appeared to be going to bed and even had to quit school once for a week. I always take Lydia's Pinkham's Vegetable Compound myself so I gave it to her and she has received great benefit from it. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish, as I can say too much about what your medicine has done for me and my daughter."

Mrs. W. S. HUGHES, Greenville, Del.

Mother and oftentimes grandmothers have taken and have learned the value of Lydia's Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So they recommend the medicine to others.

The best test of any medicine is what it has done for others. For nearly fifty years we have published letters from mothers, daughters, and women, young and old, recommending the Vegetable Compound. They know what it did for them and are glad to tell others. In your own neighborhood are women who know of its great value.

Mothers—daughters, why not try it!

BEAUTY CHATS

The Misused Boudoir Cap.

A real estate agent once remarked to me that he wondered what new thing a tenant could expect of her. A young matron who came househunting had first asked him if the women in his renting office wore boudoir caps around their homes. She had been so offended by the misuse of these caps in a nearby suburb that she was seeking a new home, and the stipulation was that "it must be certain that the women in the neighborhood did not show themselves in silly frippery."

"I hope you captured her for your lovely Sussex road venture," I suggested.

He looked mystified. "What has a silly cap got to do with real estate?" he asked.

"I know where it made a run-down piece of real estate pay handsomely," I told him. As his expression brightened, I continued: "It was a case of a woman who owned a badly run-down hotel as a seaside resort. She could not repair it, nor even make it attractive enough to risk a trial in running it as a third-rate hotel. So she advertised it as a place where all the women could wear boudoir caps if they desired; as an extra advantage, they could even cook all the family's meals in the old hotel kitchen. Of course, she dignified it somewhat by speaking of the arrangement as community housekeeping, with all the comforts of a home. However, the idea of the cap really set the standard and only such people as would not be offended rented of her."

As he wanted to know how the venture paid her, informed him that it had paid her so well, she was now getting rich from the idea. "But remember," I cautioned him, "every one, including herself, had to live down to that standard, with the result that after four seasons of such living she has fallen into it as a habit for the whole year."

"You mean she determined," he remarked, becoming enlightened. "Well, I would not want to see that sort of thing happen on Sussex road. I wish I had known a little more about these caps before, as I think this young woman should have been encouraged in her stand against such an untidy habit."

Of course, after planting the idea in his masculine mind, I agreed with his opinion perfectly. Perplexed Fatty: "When the face is too stout and you do not need a general reduction of the whole body, massage the muscles of the face but do not use any building creams."

Tomorrow—Facial Massage No. 1. All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chat" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

If Divine Sarah Should Try To Renew Youth? Play Answers

With the prevailing fad for operations to renew youth, re-made faces and other methods of rejuvenation, the question arises as to what would happen if some of the great artists now retired from the public eye would submit to treatments and again in their prime return to the stage, the world of letters, or the brush. This idea has been worked into a play by Robert McLaughlin, well-known playwright and producer, who recently achieved fame when his "Decameron Nights" was produced in London.

The play was written by McLaughlin for Sarah Bernhardt—a fact not generally known. He called the play "Fires of Spring" and built up the leading character around Sarah Bernhardt's career. The plot deals with an old actress, Paula Daudet, who by blood transfusion becomes young again, and posing as her own granddaughter she experiences all of her old triumphs on the stage.

When Bernhardt was in this country on her last tour, she had her granddaughter with her. Critics described her as being a second Bernhardt, full of fire and talent. Something of the great actress' work should be preserved through a succeeding generation, reasoned McLaughlin, and he began working on a theme. It was this that gave him the idea of rejuvenation, a passing on of the actress' talent, or rather the restoration of youth in the aging player.

should have the part of the actress restored. The matter was taken up with Bernhardt's manager and McLaughlin took the script of the play to New York and read it to Bernhardt through an interpreter.

Asked Both Roles. "Yes, I will play it," said Madame. "The play is intended for both you and your granddaughter," explained McLaughlin.

"I will play both roles," was the Divine Sarah's answer.

And there the matter rested until this year, McLaughlin preferring to shelve the play rather than have Bernhardt with all her physical infirmities attempt to portray the young woman. The play was written three years ago and during the three years McLaughlin has always been searching for a Paula Daudet. Pauline Frederick, Lenore Ulric, and others have sought his favor but he thinks he has at last found his Paula Daudet in Miss Dorothy Shoemaker and he is going to give her a chance to portray his interpretation of Bernhardt's career at his theater at Cleveland, Ohio.

UNCOMFORTABLE AFTER MEALS?

Then Try a Pinch of Black-Draught—This White-Haired Alabama Lady Says It Helps Her.

Dutton, Ala.—In recommending Theodor's Black-Draught to her friends and neighbors here, Mrs. T. F. Parks, a well-known Jackson County lady, said:

"I am getting up in years; my head is pretty white. I have seen medicines and remedies come and go, but the old reliable came and stayed. I am talking of Black-Draught, a liver medicine we have used for years—one that can be depended upon and one that will do the work."

"Black-Draught will relieve indigestion and constipation if taken right, and I know, for I tried it. It is the best thing I have ever found for the full, uncomfortable feeling after meals."

"Sour stomach and sick headache can be relieved by taking Black-Draught. It aids digestion, also assists the liver in throwing off impurities. I am glad to recommend Black-Draught, and do so to my friends and neighbors."

For simple, common ailments, due to disordered stomach, liver and bowels, you will find Theodor's Black-Draught a useful and valuable remedy. The purely vegetable ingredients of which Black-Draught is composed gently stimulate the liver, increasing the flow of digestive juices, thereby helping to prevent or relieve constipation in an easy, natural way.

Insist upon Theodor's, the original and only genuine Black-Draught—powdered herb and root liver medicine.—(adv.)

Oriental Rugs Supreme Sarouk and Kermanshah Rugs the Art of the Orient

Exact definitions and adequate explanations of beauty in art are impossible, but the quest of them is fascinating.

In seeking reasons for the beauty of Oriental Rugs one is likewise baffled.

For instance, Sarouk and Kermanshah rugs could not be created except in the Orient. They represent the best to be found in the old country—the best in wools and dyes and weaving—and the best in spirit.

The Orientals' quick reaction to the joys and sorrows of life is expressed in each rug.

Just as the great Rembrandt transmuted the sorrows that shadowed his life into the miracles of light and shade that make his paintings famous, so has the Oriental artist woven beauty out of the tragedy that has always haunted his life.

The beauty of each rug is the beauty of human life—the sum of human emotions.

The possession of such a piece of art leads inevitably to the deepening of one's own emotions and to a fuller understanding of the significance of beauty.

PERRY ADAIR IS MEDALIST IN CITY GOLF TOURNAMENT

Druid Hills Club Team Wins Trophy With 338; High Scores Recorded

Adair's 80 Low Enough for Medal—First and Second Rounds Will Be Reeled Off Today. A. A. C. Team Finishes Second.

Edgar's Record Broken
Youngstown, Ohio, September 20.—Emmett French, Youngstown professional, made what is believed to be a world's record here today by winning the 72-hole Ohio open golf championship with a total of 274. His score over the par 73 course was 67, 68, 71, 68—274.

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY
The gods of golf decreed that the qualifying round in the city championship tournament, staged yesterday over the East Lake course, would result in high scores and their instructions were carried out to the letter by close to 100 Atlanta amateur golfers, who started out on the voyage that will carry one of them to the throne room.

It was a fine time for some ambitious youngsters to come into the medalist's honors. The old-timers left the door wide open for the younger contenders, but youth is bashful. It remained for Perry Adair, once upon a time one of our boy wonders, now carrying scars of many similar combats, to win this distinction with an 80, which doesn't represent by several strokes his usual game over this course.

The 80, however, while Perry failed to regard it as an accomplishment worth telling the homefolks about, was of particular value in winning the team trophy for Druid Hills. The golfers from this club winning out over the Atlanta Athletic club, 338 to 344. The members of the winning combination were Carey Baker, Vezzy Rainwater, Mike Jones and Perry Adair, while East Lake's warriors were Toss Bradshaw, Richard Hickey, Chick Ridley and Charlie Black, Jr.

First Round Today.
Thirty-six of the starters are now safely in the first division, ready for the first round matches that will get under way this morning. It took no brilliant sailing either, to get in the big ring. The golfers who turned in 91 were easy winners of places and one who made 92, but lost to Perry Adair, was pulled into the section.

Those in the championship fight are: Perry Adair, Toss Bradshaw, W. M. Richards, Jim Senter, G. S. Vandeman, Frank A. C. Cooke, J. H. Taylor, Jr., Creed Taylor, Richard Hickey, Billy Jones, Graham Johnson, Gilbert Ogg, Carey Baker, Vezzy Rainwater, Mike Jones and Perry Adair, while East Lake's warriors were Toss Bradshaw, Richard Hickey, Chick Ridley and Charlie Black, Jr.

The program for today offers considerable entertainment for golf followers if they can get excited over a tournament of this sort so early in the competition. Two rounds face the holders of prizes in the championship fight, but the rest of the field will be called on for only one 18-hole round. The defeated sixteen in the first flight will be turned into the second flight and the first round will be played during the afternoon.

Few Close Matches.
A study of the pairing for the first round disclosed the fact that in but one or two instances the battling ought to be fairly close. Perry Adair looks to be a bit off his game and is having to work hard for the scoring he accomplishes, but he should be good enough to take it easy in his match with Jim Senter. Frank Armistead will likely go into the second round over G. E. Willey. Billy Jones and Gilbert Ogg will furnish a mighty fine match, as will Mike Jones and Johnny Green. Chick Ridley and H. P. D. Cooke are in a close-up situation, but Vezzy Rainwater ought to beat Charlie Black, Jr.

That's about the ticket for the upper bracket and some fine class is displayed in the lower section. Jimmy West and John Pothelmy will have quite a battle, as will Jim Floyd and Big Bob Jones. Floyd having the best qualifying figure, while Big Bob was off his game. Vernon McMillan strikes something tough in the first round in young Dave Black, but should win. Lewis M. Cutter, sole municipal golfer to get in the first flight, runs up against P. G. Hanahan in the first round and a great struggle will probably result. The Georgia city championship tournament held at Druid Hills earlier in the summer, Cutter was one of the real surprises of the meet. He'll likely make an impressive showing in this one, too, as he is a sterling golfer. Carey Baker, Richard Hickey, defending champion; O. E. Cooke and Toss Bradshaw look to be other winners in the lower bracket.

Race for Trophy.
After Perry Adair came in with his 30, interest in yesterday's round quickly shifted to the battle going on for the team trophy. It was reasonably certain at that time that Perry had the medal sewed up, with only Vezzy Rainwater having a fighting chance to tie the mark.

The race for the trophy was close all the way. For a while it seemed that the East Lake golfers would retain the cup they won last year, but Vezzy Rainwater's 82—with a five on the 18th incidentally—sent the Druid Hills aggregation out in front. The matter was then distinctly up to Charlie Black, Jr., who had not finished the round, but whose 42 on the first side gave A. A. C. supporters plenty of foundation for hope that young Charlie would come through with a splendid score.

But Charlie's putting on the last side was indifferent and he went seven strokes above his mark on the first nine, taking a 49, for a total of 91 and putting the East Lake team out of the running. Black was fine off the tee, in fact there was nothing wrong until the greens were reached. There his effectiveness vanished and his score began to mount.

Rainwater's comeback on the second side was another feature of the qualifying round, but this veteran of many encounters fell down on the last hole. Just when he was about to tie Perry with a 42 and had little chance to get back in the running. But this golfer doesn't give up easily and he started out to make up the lost ground. He ended with an 82, tied with Toss Bradshaw for second place. He showed in his round, however, that some of his opponent are going to have trouble before this championship is decided. There isn't a cooler golfer in the tournament.

And while we are on the general subject of golf it might be well to bring out the fact and to emphasize it as much as possible, that nothing but some remarkable golf, following some bad mistakes, enabled Perry Adair to win this championship. He and Chick Ridley were paired and at the turn Chick had a 41, while Perry was trailing with a 42.

Chick received some tough breaks on the second side, but Perry's round was followed by shots that more than made up for the ground he lost. On four consecutive holes on the second side, Perry clipped a better score. He was actually bettered par in doing so.

On the eleventh, for instance, his iron was pulled into a trap. He came out and was left with a short putt, which he sent down. On the next his second was in a trap to the left of the green, but he stopped a few inches from the cup. Perry was certain to lose out, but another marvel of his round from the trap that guards the green gave him a par four.

Chick was playing consistently and with a few more breaks his way would have made a much better score. He wasn't troubled once by shanking and looks to be in fine shape for the battle that he must wage. He was a finalist in the city championship last year and is playing better golf at this time than he was a season ago. His 83 yesterday was made without effort and he should have been several below that figure.

"Shorty" Poore Injured.

Macon, Ga., September 20.—"Shorty" Poore, of Lumber City, Ga., varsity halfback on the Mercer football team, had his scalp split in a scrimmage this afternoon. He will be well within a few days, physicians said.

PAIGE BENNETT, FRANK WILSON, SMACK THOMPSON, MARK ANTHONY, OUT WITH INJURIES—BONEY NOT IN.

BY ARTHUR LEWIS
Athens, Ga., September 20.—(Special.)—Football is booming at the University of Georgia, about 50 of Stegeman's charges are hard at work on Sanford field as the opening game with Newberry draws near. For the past several days the coaches have been putting the varsity through light scrimmages and are rapidly rounding the team out in fine shape.

Coach White has a good nucleus for his freshman squad, which turned out for practice for the first time Monday. New students are rapidly being registered so that the outlook for a strong freshman team this year is very good.

The Varsity has suffered heavily from casualties thus far. "Smack" Thompson is struggling along with a Charley horse. Mark Anthony, a regular guard for the last three years, has a bad arm caused from several operations this summer. The full use of his arm he has not been able to regain. This will probably mean that he cannot get into a game during the first part of the season.

Frank Wilson, who looks good at the pivot position, is out of the game, temporarily, as a dislocated shoulder. He has action playing backer. Douglas, as the only man showing up strong at present for this berth since Sam Boney, a letter man from 'ast year, who is also out for center, has not recovered sufficiently from a 'ast-laria attack to get under way in his old-time form. Another seemingly irremediable breach in the ranks came Tuesday afternoon when Paige Bennett, the flashy end, who played such a conspicuously stellar game last year, came down with a knee badly torn and dislocated. The injured part is now in a plaster cast with little hope for its recovery at an early date.

7TH DIST. AGGIES SCRIMMAGE; FIRST BATTLE FRIDAY

Powder Springs, Ga., September 20.—(Special.)—The football squad representing the Seventh District A. & M. school has whipped itself into fine shape for the first game of the season Friday, with the strong Marietta High eleven. The Aggies were put through their first scrimmage of the year Saturday afternoon under the direction of "Pa" Hodson and "Red" Griffith.

The produced results were highly satisfactory, the team showing good form so early in the season. The outlook for the A. & M. eleven this season is brighter than it has been in several years. They have an aggregation that looks very impressive, and a team that ought to give any team of the same rating a hard scrap.

Griffith, L. Putnam, and Little showed up well in the scrimmage Saturday, but it would be impossible to mention the names of the whole team, which is in fine shape, and all have made good showings.

The positions the various men are to play are as yet undecided and it will be no little job to select from the following men: Moore, Smith, Alexander, Griffith, Mills, Putler, Carpenter, Hunt, Little, Barrett, L. Putnam, D. Putnam, McCormick, Maginnis, Rogers, Williamson and others.

Jake Northcutt has been signed to coach the A. & M. eleven this season, and with Hodson as an assistant, the A. & M. team will have one of the best coaching staffs in the history of the school.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN READY FOR RINGMEN

New York, September 20.—The swimming hole in Madison Square Garden has been plunked over, the ring is pitched on the old familiar spot over the diving pool, and the gentlemen of the order of the vegetable are impatiently awaiting the first fight of the season's card in the ancestral home of mayhem.

On this occasion, Thursday evening, Joe Lynch, bantamweight champion, and short-cut over for hell's own kitchen, will essay to scramble the egg known as Kid Wolfe from the Cleveland crate of Thomas McGinty. Mr. McGinty is a large operator in pugilistic eggs and owned Dan Frush, who was cracked and spoiled recently by Johnny Dundee.

WHITE ARRIVES IN NEW YORK FOR BOUT

New York, September 20.—Charlie White, owner of the famous chin-busting left hook, has arrived in New York from Chicago and will go into what is known as training quarters at Saratoga to practise the wallop which he aims to present to Benny Leonard on October 3. They are to fight in the Bowl at Boyle's 30 nerve, Jersey City, which means there will be no decision.

Not only women physicians, but also women surgeons are now practicing in the Paris hospitals.

VANDY WORKS ON ATTACKING

Nashville, Tenn., September 20.—(Special.)—Those Commodores turned to a new chapter in football facts when Senator Daniel McGugin appeared on Dudley Field armed with a mass of lessons in attack. Up until that time the Vandy flock had spent its entire time in becoming familiar with modes of defense. Of course they still have considerable lessons to inhale in that department, but they have progressed far enough to extend the boundaries of their studies.

Only the cornerstone of offensive methods was laid this afternoon by Senator McGugin. The foundation of the structure is still to be erected. And along about the latter part of the week the pillars and towers and cornices, etc., will be nailed on, but they have progressed far enough to extend the boundaries of their studies.

The victory put the Yankees three and one-half games ahead of the Browns. Babe Ruth's best effort of the day was a single. Ethmeke passed him once and another time up he was called out on strikes.

Gil Reese Arrives.

Gil Reese reached camp from Toledo, Miss., fairly exuding anxiety to get into action. He has been playing ball all season, and appears to be in prime condition. In the workouts yesterday he worked with the same swift motion which marked his challenge for recognition last fall. Willie Reese is no heavier than a year back, he is equally as active and fast.

Hopes for the return to Vanderbilt of Frank Elam were practically blasted yesterday with the news that he is attending Middle Tennessee Normal at Murfreesboro. The Rutherford county school in the past has supplied the Commodores with considerable material, and Frank Elam may be taking a roundabout method of upholding the fame of Middle Tennessee Normal. However, his appearance at Vanderbilt appears very, very unlikely.

His sojourn there gives Elam a record of one university and two prep schools inside of two football seasons. Which is more than likely a record. Or very close to one.

Tigers Make Splendid Effort to Turn Back

The Yankees, But Cobb's Pitchers Weaken

In Several Pinches—Pipp Proves Star.

Detroit, September 20.—The New York Yankees continued their march toward the American league championship here today, winning from the Tigers, 6 to 5. The winning run came in the ninth inning when Meusel drove the ball over the leftfield wall for a homerun.

The victory put the Yankees three and one-half games ahead of the Browns. Babe Ruth's best effort of the day was a single. Ethmeke passed him once and another time up he was called out on strikes.

Ruth got the first hit of the game in fourth inning, but a sacrifice, strikeout and forced out left him on the paths. In the same inning Blue and Jones singled for Detroit and Vezzy was passed, filling the bases. Fothergill's triple sent in the three runners and Cutshaw sacrificed, scoring Fothergill.

The Yankees evened up the count in the fifth when Scott doubled. Shawkey was hit by a pitched ball and Ruth was passed. All three came in on Pipp's double and the latter scored on Meusel's hit.

A triple by Scott and Shawkey's single put New York in the lead in the sixth and the visitors threatened again in the seventh when Schang tripled with two down. Scott's fly to Cobb, however, ended the inning. It was tied in the eighth, Detroit scoring one run on Jones' single and Vezzy's double.

Dry Goods.

Zinc firm. East St. Louis open for delivery. $6.75-6.80. Antimony $7.00.

New York, September 20.—Cotton goods were firmer today and generally more active in finished and unfinished lines. Yarns were firmer. Wool goods of a staple character were steady and higher. Knit goods were firm. Demands for fall goods quieter.

The pond is kept as a fishing reserve by the Albany Fishing club and was well-stocked with fine bass and bream. It is believed a sufficient number of fish remain in the water still retained behind the dam to furnish "seed" for restoring the pond after the break is repaired.

The cotton market closed steady at net decline of 23 to 33 points.

New York, September 20.—A further recovery today in the cotton market met increased offerings. After selling up to 21.74 for December that position broke to 21.20 under liquidation and scattered selling accompanied by rumors of less favorable Near Eastern prospects. The close was at the day's low with the market easy, 25 to 30 points net lower. The opening was steady 7 to 10 points higher on relatively steady Liverpool cables, reports of an improving tone in Manchester and scattered evidence of demand for cotton goods in the local market and bullish overnight spot advice from the south. For a time the market showed considerable firmness selling up to 21.51 for October and 21.55 for January or about 20 to 25 points net higher, on the active positions. This represented a recovery of approximately 75 points from last Monday's low and when the weekly report of the weather bureau failed to stimulate fresh buying, the market turned lower. Liquidation of the renewed apprehension over the Near East situation seemed to increase the disposition to liquidate long contracts and the market also showed evidence of an easier technical position on the late break to 21.03 for October and 21.02 for January or about 27 to 33 points net lower. Private cables from Liverpool showed the advance in Liverpool was due partly to trade buying to fix prices on call cotton, and the early advance was accompanied by reports that after having withdrawn from the primary markets toward the end of last week, good buyers were showing renewed interest with a large business pending. There were numerous exports of a better spot demand or steady basis in the south but southern selling was a factor on the late break. Port receipts today: 25,001; United States port stocks 538,601; exports 3,750, making 399,767 so far this season.

WIDE FLUCTUATIONS FEATURE NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, September 20.—Fairly wide advances in the early trading in cotton today were followed by fairly wide declines, selling pressure being due to unfavorable rumors and reports concerning the situation in the Near East. The close was practical at the lowest, at net losses on the day of 23 to 33 points, with October at 20.53, October at its best, trading at 20.52.

The opening was strong and strength was preserved in the early trading, the list at its best standing at net gains of 15 to 20 points. Better cables than due, too much rain in the western belt, and a less unfavorable view of foreign politics, were the support of the market. Later, on war news, the market was practically at the lowest, at net losses on the day of 23 to 33 points, with October at 20.53, October at its best, trading at 20.52.

NOT MUCH CHANGE IN COTTON CROP

Washington, September 20.—Little change was noted in the condition of the cotton crop during the week ending September 19. A review issued by the U. S. department of agriculture shows the "unsatisfactory progress continuing in most localities. Rainfall was frequent in more southern portions of the belt, it was said, but was light elsewhere with temperature above the seasonable average.

"Conditions were somewhat more favorable in Arkansas and Oklahoma, the recent moisture being very favorable in Arkansas and the progress of the crop fairly good in Oklahoma.

"The summary continued: "There was a slight change in condition in Texas. The weather continued unfavorable for the late crop in Mississippi and much cotton entered to open prematurely in Alabama.

"Warm and mostly dry weather prevailed in northern Georgia and the drought prevented further development of the northern portion.

"Cotton steadily deteriorated in South Carolina because of drought and weevil damage; the top crop had been practically destroyed. Cotton was mostly poor to only fair in North Carolina. There was practically no top crop in Tennessee.

"Frequent showers and heavy rains in the more southern portion of the belt. Elsewhere throughout the belt the weather was generally favorable for the late crop, with picking and ginning made rapid progress.

Only Gas!

PAIN AROUND HEART AND PALPITATION OFTEN DUE TO GAS PRESSURE

Heart trouble is seldom accompanied by pain. Those sharp, knife-like pains felt in the region of the heart, after eating, usually result from gas in the stomach pressing against the heart and interfering with its action. Neglect of this condition may lead to more serious trouble, hence you should lose no time in getting rid of the cause of gas.

Balsmann's Gas Tablets are wonderful for the relief and prevention of gas. They act upon the stomach nerves and glands, promoting digestion and helping to correct the weakness responsible for the trouble.

You can obtain the genuine Balsmann's Gas Tablets in the yellow package, from Curtis Drug Co., Jackson Drug Co., Chas. A. Smith and other leading druggists. Price, one dollar. J. Balsmann, Chemist, San Francisco, (adv.)

scriptions to be made as a whole by their classifications, while others are canvassing branch houses that must wait for authority from home offices. All present insisted that their quotas would be raised complete.

"The most significant thing to the convention board is the fine spirit which is being manifested alike by the public and by the workers. When I hear that the majority of you men have not been turned down by a single person or firm whom you have approached, and that the town generally is backing us up in this fashion, the members of our board are inspired to go the limit in preserving the reputation of our city as America's great city and most hospitable convention city."

"We have wonderful plans in formation. Some of these will take money and some will take the active assistance of thousands of our citizens to help put into effect; but I am already convinced that the public will back us up whether in money, time, or individual effort. We will show the world that a city of 200,000 people can care for a convention with 75,000 visitors—providing that city be located in the heart of the south-east."

If the present rate of subscriptions is maintained, the finance committee anticipates no difficulty in bringing the campaign to a close promptly on schedule time Saturday. The committee is "prepared to extend its work into the following week, should any portion of the needed sum remain uncollected."

A large portion of the donations made Wednesday were in cash. The committee will accept cash payments for one-third the amount subscribed on November 10, another third on December 10, and the balance on January 10.

Five divisions reported the completion of their quotas. The stock and bond division had pledged for their entire amount immediately after they received instructions Monday night. The laundrymen finished their work Tuesday, while the hotels, dentists and jewelers gave in full disbursements, but were asked to report from day to day and assist other committees.

The largest subscription was made by the Atlanta Lodge, No. 78, B. P. O. Elks. The lodge appropriated $25,000 from its reserves to form a foundation for the fund. This amount does not include subscriptions made by individual Elks, these are included in the various divisional subscriptions and represent a substantial part of the total.

Adair Gives $500.

The first subscription from an individual came from Forrest Adair who mailed his check for $500 to the committee as soon as the campaign was announced.

The very large total which resulted from the first morning's work is made up mostly of small subscriptions. Following its announced plan of asking for modest sums from a very large number of people, the finance committee has kept its budget down to as small a figure as possible. Several divisional leaders announced that firms with whom they had talked volunteered to raise their subscriptions later if this was needed to complete the fund.

The results of the campaign during Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning will be announced at a luncheon in the main dining room of the Ansley hotel at 12:30 Thursday. All divisions are urged by Chairman Henderson to be represented by their chairman and as many members of the division as possible. The luncheons are being held strictly to an hour in duration.

Pleased By Start.

"I have never known a campaign for money in this city to have a more auspicious start than this," said John S. McClelland, who presided at the luncheon. "Considering the fact that today is election day and that we have only half an hour for three hours and less and have only received reports from about half our committees, the showing is really remarkable."
